“HEALTH RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT TO ADDRESS HEALTH INEQUITY”

PREFACE

On behalf of the Committee, we would like to invite you to attend "The 1st International Symposium on Health Research & Development and the 3rd Western Pacific Regional Conference World Federation Public Health Associations 2011" to be held on 16-18 November 2011 in Bali, Indonesia.

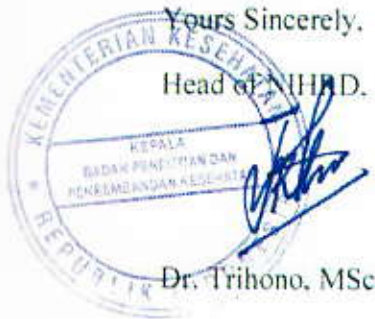

In human life, health is considered as one measurement of a society's level of prosperity and the first of human right. The National Institute of Health and Research Development (NIHRD) in collaboration with Indonesian Public Health Association (IPHA), World Federation of Public Health Association (WFPHA) and World Health Organization (WHO) proudly presents International Symposium on Health Research and Development in order to increase the role of the scientific community in improving health. This activity is created to support science and technology, exchange information and experience in the public health, identify knowledge discrepancy and develop a future research agenda to address health equity.

Chairperson,

Dr. dr. Trihono, MSc
DG of NIHRD, MOH - Indonesia

Yours Sincerely,

Head of NIHRD.

Dr. Trihono, MSc

BACKGROUND

The National Institute of Health Research and Development of the Indonesian Ministry of Health, together with the Indonesian Public Health Association (IAKMI), the World Federation of Public Health Associations (WFPHA) and World Health Organization (WHO), are pleased to announce the 1st INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON HEALTH RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT and the 3rd WESTERN PACIFIC REGIONAL SYMPOSIUM WORLD FEDERATION PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

Representatives of the National Public Health Associations from various countries; Australia, China (together with Taiwan, Macau and Hongkong), Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Mongolia, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam will participate and have their 3rd regional meeting. In addition representatives from all the countries of the ASEAN Pacific Region such as Bangladesh and India are welcome to attend.

Researchers, policy-makers, academicians, and other representatives of multilateral organizations, donor agencies and private foundations as well as non-government institutions from international, civil society, and the private sectors will gather in Bali, Indonesia, to share evidence, experience, identify knowledge gaps and set a future research agenda to improve health equity.

The World Health Report 2000 notes that health should be good (high value, high quality) and fair (equitable access for all services). When health services are unfairly distributed, regardless of how good they are, we still face inequity in terms of health status. The lowest infant mortality is in Iceland, with 2.6 deaths per 1000 live births, one of the highest in Sierra Leone, with nearly 157 deaths per 1000 live births. Maternal mortality has a greater range between countries. The chance of dying from pregnancy related causes for a woman in developing countries is up to 40 times higher than for a woman in developed countries.

Health inequity occurs not only across countries in the world but also within a country across states, provinces, or districts. Within the ASEAN region, for example, there is an inequity of the Human Development Index (HDI) across countries. Within ASEAN countries, the 2010 of Human Development Index (HDI), Indonesia ranked 108, a bit higher compared e.g. to Cambodia (124) and Vietnam (113), but still left behind compared to Malaysia (57), Philippines (97), Singapore (27) and Thailand (92).

Within the country, Indonesia demonstrates inequity of health status and health services as well. Basic Health Research done in 2010 revealed that there was a disparity of the nutritional status (prevalence of underweight, of stunting, and of wasting), across provinces and the urban-rural gradient, but also according to the educational level of the parents and the economic quintiles. The coverage of health services, like ante-natal care, health personnel attended deliveries, complete immunization and access to clean water and house sanitation varies in the same way across Indonesia

Due to the existence of health inequity across countries and within countries across areas and characteristics of the people, it is of importance to design area-specific public health interventions to accelerate the achievement of the MDG's. As fairness (equity) is an important element of health system strengthening it is inappropriate to set generic public health interventions without taking consideration local conditions, and the local capacity.
