SUMMARY

The Use Of Role Play To Foster The Eighth Grade Students' Speaking Achievement At SMPN 2 Mayang In The 2016/2017 Academic Year; Nafiatun Ainia Asy'ari, 130210401066; 2017:28 pages; English Education Program, Language and Arts Departement, The Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Jember University

The ability of speaking becomes a crucial part of second language teaching and learning. Unfortunately, despite its importance, the teaching and learning of speaking skill has been undervalued. Mostly, English teachers just teach the written aspects of language. The fact that, today's goal of teaching and learning speaking is improving students' communicative skills. For that reason, speaking is a skill that deserves attention in every part and cannot be undervalued (Bygate, 2009).

Another way to make the students speak is through Role Play. Role Play is putting oneself in the role of another person or playing and acting in a different way from the usual role you play in life (Sternberg, 2000: 8). Role Playing is a technique of teaching speaking that explores some issues involved in social situations. Ments (1999:19) says that the most obvious uses of role-play are in those areas which deal primarily with aspects of communication. Since Role Play is a communication based technique, we can see its effectiveness through various situations in getting the students to speak.

This study used classroom action research (CAR) as the research design that was primarily intended to find out whether the use of Role Play can improve speaking skill or not. The research was conducted collaboratively with the English teacher of VIIIA SMPN 2 Mayang by following the action research model suggested by Elliot (1991: 71). The action research model consisted of six steps. They were: (1) preliminary study; (2) planning the action; (3) implementing the action; (4) observing the action; (5) evaluating the action; and (6) reflecting the action.

The students' speaking test showed good results. 77% of the students in the class could achieve the passing grade that was 75. Although the research successful criteria had been achieved in Cycle 1, Cycle 2 was still conducted to check the consistency of the research result. Then, the result of the speaking test in Cycle 2 showed consistent results on the students' speaking scores. The percentage of the students who got at least 75 in the speaking test had increased from 77% in Cycle 1 to 85% in Cycle 2.

Based on the results of Cycle 1 and Cycle 2, it could be concluded that the use of Role Play could improve the students' speaking achievement in the teaching learning process of speaking. The students were motivated to have courages to speak in front of the class. They were also creative to create the plot of the Role Play for their own group performance. In other words, it could be stated that; the use of Role Play could foster the VIII A grade students' speaking skill of SMPN 2 Mayang.

CHAPTER I INTRODUCTION

This chapter covers some aspects related to the topic of the research. It consists of four segments: Research background, research problem, research objective and research contribution.

1.1 Research Background

Speaking is one of the four language skills which takes the role as a means of communication in our daily life. Spoken language is more commonly used rather than written form as a means for interacting one and another. Speaking is the skill to communicate orally between two or more people that can be done through transferring messages using verbal or nonverbal language. Thus, in teaching and learning process, speaking takes the role as media of instruction. Speaking becomes the bridge between the teacher and the students (Kayi, 2006).

There are at least three major reasons to make students speak in the classroom. First, speaking activity provides chances to practice speaking in the classroom. Second, students can try to use any or all of the verbal or nonverbal language they have known. It is intended to see how well they are doing; on both how successful they are and what language problems they are experiencing. Third, students can have more opportunities to enable the various elements of language that they have stored in their brain. As a result, students will gradually become autonomous language users. It means that the students will be able to use words, phrases and sentences fluently including the nonverbal language without very much conscious of thought (Harmer, 2007).

To speak is just an easy action, but not for speaking in foreign languages. Speaking in foreign languages can be mastered depending on how often we practice. The issues discussing about students' difficulties in speaking foreign languages still happen continuously. The foreign language mostly taught in Indonesian schools is English. It has been taught as a compulsory subject.

Nowadays, the teaching of English has started from the elementary level as a local content up to the Junior and Senior high School as a compulsory subject. This policy implies that a student, at least, has a six-year opportunity to learn English and to master it well. Unfortunately, it is still hard to find Indonesian senior high school graduates who have good English mastery especially those who can speak English fluently (Detiknews.com, 2017).

Based on the preliminary study, there are two reasons why speaking in English is difficult to master. First, the students were lack of motivation. This made the students less confident with their capability in learning English. Another reason was that, the methods used by the teacher in teaching speaking skill were inappropriate. The methods that had been used by the teacher in learning English were only pair and group work to do written exercises. The use of those methods did not show any improvement of in the teaching and learning process of English. Thornbury (2010) mentions that the teaching of English as a foreign language requires the use of effective learning techniques, language games, drills or activities that can promote speaking skill.

To overcome this situation there should be found an effective way to teach speaking for foreign language learners. Harmer (2007) states that good speaking activities can and should be extremely engaging for the students. If they are all participating fully and if the teacher has set up the activity properly, it can then give tremendous satisfactions from it. Hence, the researcher offered a way that could motivate students to learn English especially to encourage students to speak and to give them the chance to communicate even with limited language called Role Play. The researcher used Role Play to teach English speaking for the eighth grade students.

In addition, Role Play technique is one of the ways to teach speaking by putting students in a certain situation in pairs or groups. This means that the researcher put two or more students together as a group and gave them a handout sheet. It contains a situation, which they can read, discuss, look-up unknown words and share with their friends about the plot of the Role Play, the characters, the vocabularies and pronunciation. Furthermore, the researcher also gave the students a few more minutes for the discussion to get their practice of the Role Play and to get a feel for the role they will be playing. By this way, the students will get used to the words, sounds and the rhythm of the language (Anderson, 2006).

By using Role Play in the teaching of speaking, students could improve not only their knowledge in their speaking skill but also increase their motivation and confidence to speak. Role Play is used to develop students' creativity, because through performing Role Play students are given the opportunity to use their imagination, gestures and facial expressions. This statement implied that students could use their non verbal language freely without verymuch consious of thought.

Learning through Role Play let the students work in group and have some friends to talk that can decrease the students' nervousness. Thus, learning using Role Play let the students use their gestures and facial expressions that will help them transfer what they want to say in both verbal and non-verbal way more fluently. As a result, students will be more convenient to express their ideas or their feelings in English.

1.2 Research Problem

Based on the background of study above, the problem of the research can be formulated as;

- How could the use of Role Play foster the eighth grade students' speaking achievement?

1.3 Research Objective

The objective of the study was intended to answer and to find out whether or not the use of Role Play could foster the eighth grade students' speaking achievement.

1.4 Practical Research Contribution

The result of this research served a technique of teaching speaking that could be beneficial for the teachers. The teachers were expected to be able to use

Role Play for teaching English due to some advantages of it for speaking skill. Teachers could make this research result as a guidance to create, to find and to give more suitable exercises related to the use of Role Play. The exercises must be matched with the subject being discussed in the classroom, so that the students would be easily reaching the objectives of the study and be more active during the teaching and learning process.

CHAPTER II

RELATED LITERATURE REVIEW

This chapter covers some aspects related to the theoretical framework covering what speaking skill is, the elements of speaking skill, definition of Role Play, advantages and disadvantages of Role Play, types of Role Play, how to select and apply Role Play in teaching speaking, the research hypothesis and the previous research findings.

2.1 Definition of Speaking Skill

Speaking plays an essential role in our daily life since speaking is the process of transferring meaning by using verbal and non-verbal language. Speaking is an interactive process of building meaning that involves producing, receiving and processing information. A human being always needs communication to express his/her idea to do everything. Speaking also takes an important role in the teaching and learning process where speaking is the bridge of communicating between the teacher and the students (Chaney, 2006).

Additionally, the ability of speaking becomes a crucial part of second language teaching and learning. Unfortunately, despite its importance, the teaching and learning of speaking skill has been undervalued. Mostly, English teachers just teach the written aspects of language. The fact that, today's goal of teaching and learning speaking is improving students' communicative skills. For that reason, speaking is a skill that deserves attention in every part and cannot be undervalued (Bygate, 2009).

Furthermore, being able to communicate becomes the main or the core aspect of teaching and learning speaking. Clark (1991) says that speaking is fundamentally an instrument of action, which means that speaking becomes the base of interaction. On this account, the teaching and learning of speaking can be considered as successful if the language itself is functioned as a system for expressing and transferring meaning through either verbal or non verbal language.

Nunan (1991) states that the success in teaching and learning speaking is measured through someone's ability to build a conversation and to transfer messages using the language.

Based on the statement above mentioned, the researcher concludes that speaking is the ability of expressing ideas using one's thought through verbal and non verbal languages. When someone is saying something about either their feel or thought to other people, there will be a relationship between the speaker and the listener. The relationship itself is called communication.

2.2 The Elements of Speaking

Speaking is a complex skill requiring the use of a number of different abilities simultaneously and has several elements. Commonly, either four or five speaking elements are generally known and used to analyze the speech processes (Heaton, 1990).

2.2.1 Pronunciation

Harmer (2007) states that students need to be able to pronounce words, phrases and sentences correctly and to use appropriate stresses and intonation patterns to speak fluently using English. The speaker must be able to articulate the words clearly and correctly to avoid misunderstanding of the messages being transferred. At the stage of pronouncing some vocabularies, often, the language learners have the problems in distinguishing the sounds which are strange or new for them to utter. Moreover, the sounds which do not exist in their mother tongue language will be hard to pronounce.

2.2.2 Grammar

Knowing a lot about how words, phrases, clauses and sentences are structured correctly can make the speaker more confident to speak, because they will be sure that what they want to say is transferred and accepted in the expected way (Fromkin& Rodman, 1998). Grammar deals with the sentence patterns or the rules of combining a word to any other words to create some understandable and meaningful sentences based on the context. By this consideration, grammar is very important in speaking, because grammar can make the conversation or the communication among people run facilely.

2.2.3 Vocabulary

To be able to speak or communicate with the people around, we have to know a lot about the language vocabulary. As we know, vocabulary is a basic element of a language. It is clearly stated by Folse (2004) “by having limited vocabulary mastery, the conversation will get stuck”. Vocabulary is any kinds of single word, set phrases and idioms used in a certain language.

2.2.4 Fluency

Fluency is the ability to talk freely without too much stopping or hesitating (Riddel, 2001). Meanwhile, it is significant to make an appropriate placement of pauses to avoid misunderstanding between the speaker and the listener. People are categorized as fluent speakers if they do not need to spend a lot of time in searching language items needed to express the message.

2.2.5 Content

Another element of speaking is content. Content, in this research, is the message or ideas which are expressed by the speaker. According to Brown and Yule (1983:13) “when the message is the reason for speaking, then the message must be understood. Meaningful speech is necessary to make the communication acceptable without any misunderstanding”.

2.3 Definition of Role Play

Another way to make the students speak is through Role Play. Role Play is putting oneself in the role of another person or playing and acting in a different way from the usual role you play in life (Sternberg, 2000: 8).

Role Playing is a technique of teaching speaking that explores some issues involved in social situations. Ments (1999:19) says that the most obvious uses of Role Play are in those areas which deal primarily with aspects of communication. Since Role Play is a communication based technique, we can see its effectiveness through various situations in getting the students to speak.

Role Play is the practice or experience of being someone else. It is employed to enable a person to attempt to understand the situation of another person. Role Play gives students the opportunity to practice interacting with others in certain roles. Considering the purpose of Role Playing, Gavrey (1967) says that, in Role Play, the students' aim is to feel, react and behave as closely as possible to the role they will be playing.

Additionally, Ments (1999: 13) also mentions that Role Play is motivational and effective, because it involves activity that encourages and motivates the students to speak. Role Play is a very interesting way to get the students speak in comparison with the regular teaching and learning process which is usually monotonous. The researcher had done observations to the English teacher of the targeted school for three times. During the observation, the researcher found that the English teacher applied the monotonous activities such as reading aloud the dialogues on the students' worksheet to get the students speak in the classroom. Through the use of Role Play, students seem to get a different experience related to their lives and other social situations, which help them be more creative.

2.4 Advantages and Disadvantages of Role Play

Role Play is one of some techniques of teaching speaking and a part of language teaching for many years. Many people have tried to apply Role Play in the teaching and learning process. Some of them say that there are several advantages of using Role Play, especially for making the students speak. Some of the advantages of using Role Play for speaking skill are described below:

- a. Role Play provides important practices of spoken language for all language learners.

- b. Role Play allows students to be someone else to be part of the situation, and to abandon their inhibitions and fears.
- c. Role Play can impress the students with the strong and long-lasting in the minds of them, because playing a Role Play becomes a pleasant experience that is hard to forget.
- d. Role Play generates passion and optimism in students and fosters a sense of togetherness since Role Play is performed within group.
- e. Role Play involves an element of play that provides an enjoyable activity because it is performed within groups.
- f. Role Play is used to develop students' creativity, because through performing Role Play students are given the opportunity to use their imagination, gestures and facial expressions.
- g. Role Play is aimed at encouraging students to speak and increasing their self-confidence.
- h. Role Play is also essential for enriching the knowledge, attitudes and skills (Anderson, 2006 and Ments, 1999).

Role Play is a powerful instructional technique. Unfortunately, often it is misused by teachers. They use it without considering that it also may have drawbacks or disadvantages. Here are some disadvantages teachers should know about the use of Role Play;

- a. Students might not be able to understand the message that is intended by the teacher in every situation of the Role Play.
- b. Students' self emotional responses can make new conflicts of the Role Play.
- c. Unprepared students may not be able to participate fully.
- d. Time-consuming during class.

In accordance with some disadvantages of Role Play above, the researcher had applied some awesome solutions for each point.

- a. After the Role Play performance, the teacher gave clarification about the message that the teacher tended to give to the students in the Role Play.
- b. The teacher had selected and prepared some Role Play situations that really suit the students' condition and match the students' need.
- c. The teacher gave longer time for the discussion so that students will have themselves well prepared.
- d. The teacher limited the material being taught to the students.

2.5 Types of Role Play

In terms of role playing activities, according to Donn (1986), Role Play can be classified into two forms, scripted and unscripted Role Play. Those two types are described below:

2.5.1 Scripted Role Play

This type of Role Play involves scripted dialogues both in some textbooks and reading texts in the form of speech. The main function of the text after all is to convey the meaning of the language in a memorable way.

For more details, Doff(1998) gives an example of scripted Role Play dialogue and reading text and how the process is:

- Angela : Good morning. I want to send a letter to my friend in Jakarta.
- Clerk : Yes, how do you want to send the letter? by air or regular mail?
- Angela : I think I'll send it by air mail. I want it to get there quickly.
How much does it cost?
- Clerk : To Jakarta? That would be 75 thousand rupiahs.
- Angela : (giving to the officer 100 rupiahs) Here you are.
- Clerk : Here's your stamp, and the change of the 25 thousand rupiahs.
- Angela : Thank you.
- Clerk : You are welcome.

(Adapted from Doff, 1998)

2.5.2 Unscripted Role Play

In contrast to the scripted Role Play, the situations of unscripted Role Play do not depend on scripted dialogues. This is known as a free Role Play or improvised Role Play. The students themselves must decide what language to use and how the conversation should be developed. To carry out this activity, a good preparation of teachers and students is really needed.

An example of unscripted Role Play which is stated by Doff (1998) is as follow:

There are two people in the police station

One person has lost a bag. He/she is at the police station.

The other person is the police officer, and asks for information.

The above situation gives some clues to the students so that they can place themselves to be somebody else. Each of the characters has been described briefly. Using the unscripted Role Play will let the students be more creative. The students can make their own plot and build their own conversation using the vocabulary they are familiar with.

Hence, in this research, the researcher used the unscripted Role Play to foster the eighth grade students speaking skill. The reason was the researcher let the students use their own creativity to create the plot of the story. The students would be able to develop the situation given by the teacher to be performed based on their own creativity. The students could use the vocabulary they were familiar with and make their own dialogues representing the role they would be playing. This type of Role Play would make them easier to perform because their brain would not be stuck on the structured conversation like in the scripted Role Play.

2.6 The procedures of using Role Play

Role Play exercises may be hard work for the teacher, both in preparation and in execution. However, the work tends to get paid off by the students' motivation and accomplishment (Anderson, 2006). Before applying the Role Play, teachers should draw up scenarios as needed referring to the materials, the sequences of the lesson plan and the syllabus that have been prepared. This is necessary to do in order to get an interesting learning activity, to easily achieve goals. Steps that can be taken in applying the Role Play in the teaching and learning process are listed below:

- a. When using a Role Play becomes a new technique of teaching, the teacher should firstly explain about what Role Play is and how it is applied.
- b. The teacher will give the students a hand sheet containing the situations and problems that will be played by the student within group. Then, the teacher lets the students have some discussion about how their Role Play will run and lets the students get familiar with the sentences.
- c. The teacher sets the scene of the class in a way that really can build a more interesting interaction among students.
- d. The teacher will set a few minutes for comments. Students are given the opportunity to provide comments for the other group performances. The comments are intended as an evaluation for the groups and as media in order that the rest of the students pay attention to their friends' performance.
- e. The teacher receives all input from students and provides appropriate conclusions to avoid misunderstanding among students.
- f. The last stage of conducting Role Play is assessing the Role Play.

(Adapted from Anderson, 2006)

In this research, the researcher did not do exactly the same steps stated by Anderson. The researcher missed the fourth step (point d). The purpose of not using that step is avoiding students' mental killing. The researcher assumed that by giving some comments after their performance will affect the students' enthusiasm in performing Role Play.

2.7 The action hypothesis

In this research, the researcher attempted to give a tentative solution to the problems on students' speaking skill, the hypothesis of the research could be stated as; the use of Role Play could foster the eighth grade students' speaking skill.

2.8 Previous Research Finding

Nur Anggraeny had conducted a research about the use of Role Play for teaching speaking. This research used the scripted Role Play and stated that the use of Role Play could improve the students' speaking skill, extended their motivation and confidence to speak and explored many things imaginatively. Then, Ari Purnawan also had done a research on Role Play especially on students' narrating skill. This research also uses the same type of Role Play but for different level of participants. The research result showed that the use of Role Play helped the students to get easier in narrating a story within groups. Additionally, Mohammad Fauzan's research on the use of Role Play was also resulting that there was a significant improvement on the students' speaking skill after the teaching-learning using Role Play. It stated that 89% of the students could speak very well while performing Role Play.

From those researches, the researcher decided to do a research on the use of Role Play but with different type and different level of participants. The researcher tended to use the unscripted form of Role Play for the eighth grade students. the researcher assumed that the use of unscripted role play would make the students be more creative. Unscripted Role Play let the students make their own story plot and dialogues, so that the students will not get stucked on the written script of their Role Play. The research design was classroom action research that has the purpose on fostering the students' speaking skill through the use of Role Play.

THE STUDY

This chapter discusses about the research design, research participants, data collection methods, research procedures and data analysis.

3.1 Research Design

The study used classroom action research (CAR) as the research design. Burns (2010) states that a classroom action research is an action research which is applied in the teaching learning process. It can be in the classroom or out of classroom to foster teaching learning achievement in a certain lesson. This classroom action research was primarily intended to find out whether the use of Role Play could foster students' speaking skill or not. The research was conducted collaboratively with the English teacher of VIIIA SMPN 2 Mayang by following the action research model suggested by Elliot (1991: 71). The action research model consisted of six steps. They were: (1) preliminary study; (2) planning the action; (3) implementing the action; (4) observing the action; (5) evaluating the action; and (6) reflecting the action.

In this classroom action research, the teaching learning process was divided into two cycles. On account of this fact, the result of the post-test in Cycle 1 was used as valuable input and basis to accordingly revise the planning in Cycle 2. Therefore, Cycle 2 was conducted to ensure the research results.

3.2 Research Participants

The participants were the eighth grade students of SMPN 2 Mayang. They were the students of class VIII A in academic year 2016/2017, consisted of 40 students, 31 female and 9 male students. The researcher decided to select this class because the students were passive English users. In addition, based on the result of interview with the English teacher during the preliminary study, the selected class had low scores of daily speaking achievement. Therefore, Role Play was applied to foster their speaking skill.

3.3 Data Collection Methods

There were three kinds of data collection methods used in this research;

3.3.1 Speaking Test

Speaking test was used to get the main data of VIII A students' speaking achievement by using Role Play. The tests were attached in Appendices G and J. The test was conducted in the end of each cycle using double scorer. Dealing with the scoring system, the researcher had prepared a scoring rubric covering all speaking components and Role Play assessment. The scoring rubric was attached in Appendix C. The students were asked to perform Role Play within groups. Then, the students' performances were recorded using camera.

3.3.2 Interview

Interview in this research was done in the preliminary study. It was conducted on March 20th, 2017 with the English teacher of VIII A of SMPN 2 Mayang as the interviewee. The data collected were used to support the background of the research. They were about the methods that had been applied by the English teacher, the students' problem in learning speaking English and other supporting data about the research participants. The type of interview was guided interview. It means that the researcher prepared a list of the questions and asked based on the prepared questions to get the information needed.

3.3.3 Documentation

Documentation was used in the preliminary study. It had a purpose to collect the supporting data in this classroom action research. The supporting data were the list of the students' names in VIII A and the previous speaking scores from the English teacher.

3.4 Research Procedures

This classroom action research was implemented in the form of cycles in which each cycle consisted of six steps. They were: (1) preliminary study; (2) planning the action; (3) implementing the action; (4) observing the action; (5) evaluating the action and (6) reflecting the action.

3.4.1 Preliminary Study

Preliminary study was conducted to find the problem faced by the students in learning speaking. It was also to determine whether the action conducted was really needed by the class to make improvement in the speaking achievement. It had been conducted by doing interview and collecting some documents.

3.4.2 Planning the action

Planning the action was used to make the implementation of the action research run properly. It referred to some preparations needed in all steps to implement the action of the research. They were as follows;

1. Constructing the Lesson Plans for Meeting I and Meeting II in Cycle 1 based on the curriculum used for the eighth grade.
2. Preparing the scoring rubric to score the students' speaking test.
3. Constructing speaking test as the posttest given in the end of each cycle.

3.4.3 Implementing the Action

The action was implemented after finishing planning the action. The researcher conducted the action in the classroom using Role Play to foster the students' speaking achievement. The implementation of the action in Cycle 1 was done based on Lesson Plan I and Lesson Plan II. Those were attached in Appendices E and F. The action in Cycle 2 was done with revised planning. The researcher made some changes on the Lesson Plan III and IV based on the weaknesses of Cycle 1. The implementation of the action in Cycle 2 was done based on Lesson Plan III and Lesson Plan IV. Those were attached in Appendix H and I. The actions in both cycles were done collaboratively with the English teacher during the school hours according to the schedule of the class.

3.4.4 Observing the Action

In this classroom action research, the observation was done in each meeting both in cycles. The observation in Cycle 1 had a purpose to know the students responses to the use of Role Play and to get some data to make some revision for Cycle 2. The observation in Cycle 2 was used to know whether the revised planning had worked or not. This observation was done collaboratively with the English teacher.

3.4.5 Evaluating the Action

In this research, evaluation was carried out to know the improvement of the students' speaking achievement after giving the actions in Cycle 1. The evaluation used was product evaluation. The product evaluation was done by administering speaking test at the end of the cycle. The action was considered successful, if the action reached the criteria of the success in this classroom action research. At least 75% of the students in the speaking class could achieve the passing grade that was 75 in the speaking test.

3.4.5.1 Data Analysis

The obtained data from each Cycle were analyzed based on the scoring rubric of speaking assessment. To find the percentage of the students who got score  $\geq 75$  in the speaking test, their speaking scores were analyzed by using the following formula:

$$E = \frac{n}{N} \times 100\%$$

Notes:

E = The percentage of the students who got 75 or more in the speaking test.

n = The number of the students who got 75 or more in the speaking test.

N = The total number of the students in the class

(Adopted from Ali, 1993: 186)

The procedures of analyzing the students' speaking scores were described as follows:

- a. Paying attention and scoring the students' performance during the test.
- b. Listening to recorded speaking test results to ensure the assessing process.
- c. Assessing each indicator of speaking based on the scoring rubric prepared.
- d. Calculating the scores based on the scoring table.
- e. Making a conclusion.

3.4.6 Reflecting the Action

In this research, reflection of the action was done by the researcher and the English teacher. The reflection was done after doing the data analysis. The reflection was conducted to know whether or not the action given could successfully foster the students' speaking achievement. The result of the reflection was used to decide whether the action was stopped or not.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents the conclusion dealing with the research findings and delivers suggestions to people who might deal with this research in the present time or in the future.

5.1 Conclusion

This research was intended to foster the VIII A students' speaking achievement through the use of Role Play. This research used Classroom Action Research as the research design. The students' speaking test showed good results. 77.5% students, with the mean score 75.5, could achieve the passing grade that was 75. There were only 9 students who achieved scores below 75 in Cycle 1. Although, the research successful criteria had been achieved in Cycle 1, Cycle 2 was still conducted to ensure the research result. Thus, the result of the speaking test in Cycle 2 showed a great improvement on the students' speaking scores. The percentage of the students who got at least 75 in the speaking test had increased from 77.5% in Cycle 1 to 85% in Cycle 2 with the mean score 85.5 and only 6 students got the score below 75.

Based on the results of Cycle 1 and Cycle 2, it could be concluded that the use of Role Play could foster the students' speaking achievement in the teaching learning process of speaking. The students were motivated to have the courage to speak in front of the class. They were also creative to create the plot of the Role Play for their own group performance. In other words, it could be stated that; the use of Role Play could foster the VIII A grade students' speaking skill of SMPN 2 Mayang.

5.2 Suggestions

This research results show that the use of Role Play could foster the students' speaking achievement. Thus, the researcher would like to give suggestions to the following people;

1. The English Teachers

The result of this research serves as a technique of teaching speaking that can be beneficial for the teachers. English teachers are expected to be able to use Role Play for teaching English due to some advantages of Role Play for speaking skill. This research result might be used a guidance for the English teachers to create, to find and to give more suitable exercises related to the use of Role Play to improve the students' speaking skill. The exercises must be matched with the subject being discussed in the classroom, so that the students will be easily reaching the objectives of the study and be more active during the teaching and learning process.

2. The Future Researchers

The future researchers who find a similar problem are suggested to use this research result as a reference to do further research dealing with the use of Role Play to improve the students' speaking achievement. The next research can be done with different research design or different level of the research participants. The weakness of this research is on the observation process during the Cycles. The researcher did not prepare any observation checklist (observation sheet) as the reference to measure how far the students could get enjoy in practicing speaking through Role Play.

Do you ever see your friend's hair style?

How does it look like?

Do you have a friend with the old fashioned hair style?

How do you think about your the old fashioned hair style?

THE EXAMPLE OF ROLE PLAY SITUATION

"The Old Fashioned Hair Style"

There are five people in the garden. They are Rina and Rini. They are talking about their friend's hair style whose name is Novi. They assume that her hair style is old fashioned. Suddenly, there were Novi's best friends whose names are Nila and Dila pass in front of them and hear all their conversation. Nila decides to tell Novi about what she has heard. Actually Dila has forbidden her, but Nila still keep telling. Knowing that, Novi was extremely angry. Novi comes to see Rina and Rini. Novi, Nila, Rina and Rini quarrel. Dila tries to stop them and make them realize that they are friend, so they must not fight one and another.

Use your imagination to develop the situation become a Role Play! Perform the Role Play within group!
