ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost, I would like to express the greatest gratitude to Allah SWT for always listening to my grumble and grievance but still waiting to give me courage and patience so that I am finally able to finish the thesis entitled “The Effect of Using Comic Strips on the Eighth Grade Students’ Reading Comprehension Achievement” In relation to the completion of this thesis, I would like to express my deepest and sincerest thanks to:

1. The Dean of the Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Jember University
2. The Chairperson of the Language & Arts Department.
3. The Chairperson of English Language Education Study Program.
4. The first and the second consultants, Dra. Wiwiek Eko Bindarti, M.Pd., and Drs. I Putu Sukmaantara, M.Ed. for the plentiful time and patience that they spent in guiding me to compose a better thesis.
5. The first and the second examiners, Drs. Bambang Suharjito, M.Ed. and Dra. Siti Sundari, M.A. who gave me so much direction and some input on writing my thesis.
6. My academic supervisor Dra. Zaskiyah Tasnim, M.A.
7. The lecturers of the English Language Education Study Program who have supported me to work harder in a path I should walk on.
8. The principal and the English teacher of SMPN 2 Siliragung for giving me an opportunity, help, and support to conduct this research.
9. The eighth grade students of SMPN 2 Siliragung in 2020/2021 academic year especially classes VIII B and VIII E for gladly participating as the participants of my research.

I believe that this thesis might have some weaknesses. Therefore, any criticism from those who really want to improve this thesis will be wisely appreciated.

SUMMARY

The Effect of Using Comic Strips on the Eighth Grade Students' Reading Comprehension Achievement; Ulfa Diaz Pratiwi, 160210401021; 2020; 41 pages; English Language Education Study Program, Language and Arts Department, Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Jember University.

Reading is one of the language skills that must be mastered by the students because by reading, students are able to relate or connect every kind of learning skill. The main purpose of reading is to understand the whole content of the text. In order to understand the whole content of the text, the readers need comprehension skill to be the fundamental goal of reading. According to Grellet (1996) reading comprehension is the process of understanding, guessing, predicting, checking, and asking some specific information from the content. In fact, most students do not like reading, because they do not understand the reading text well.

Based on the preliminary study at SMPN 2 Siliragung by doing the interview with the eighth grade of the English teacher, the teacher explained that he only uses picture series in teaching reading comprehension. However the use of picture series still cannot facilitate the students in comprehending the reading text. It was found out that the students got difficulties to find the appropriate pictures with sentences in the text. That is why, the students easily got bored in comprehending the reading text.

In this case the alternative media that can be used by the teacher in teaching reading comprehension is comic strips. Comic strips are useful for teaching and emphasizing the meaning of words by looking at the pictures with some unique characters that describe the exact plot of the story. Thus, the researcher was interested in conducting an experimental research in order to know whether or not the use of comic strips had a significant effect in teaching reading comprehension.

The purpose of this research was to investigate whether or not there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung. The researcher used Quasi experimental research with post-test only design. The population of this research were all the eighth grade students of SMPN 2 Siliragung in the 2020/2021 academic year.

Before selecting the participants of the research, the researcher conducted the homogeneity test in order to know whether the population was homogeneous or heterogeneous, and the result of homogeneity test showed that the population was heterogeneous because the significant level was 0.001 which was less than 0.05 ($P_{sig} < 0.05$). Therefore, the researcher chose two classes that had the closest mean scores as the experimental and the control classes. Thus, VIII B was chosen as the experimental class and VIII E was chosen as the control class by lottery. In this case, the experimental class received the treatment that was taught reading comprehension by using comic strips, while the control class did not received the treatment but it was taught reading comprehension by using picture series usually used by the English teacher.

There were two kinds of data used in this research, they are, primary data and the supporting data. The primary data gained from the students' reading comprehension scores on the post-test, while the supporting data were collected from the results of interview and documentation. In order to collect the primary data, the researcher administered the post test, and analyzed the results by using independent sample T-test on SPSS to find the significant difference of the experimental and the control classes. The t-test formula analysis showed that the value of the significant (2-tailed) was 0.021, which means that it was less than significant degree 0.05. Therefore, the null hypothesis (H_0) indicated that "there was no significant effect on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung" was rejected and the alternative hypothesis (H_a) formulated "there was a significant effect on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung" was accepted.

Based on the result of this research, hopefully the research result will be useful for the following people. For the English teacher, it is suggested for the English teacher of SMPN 2 Siliragung to build the students' reading comprehension achievement by using comic strips as the teaching media. Therefore, it is hoped that comic strips can be used by the English teacher because comic strips are effective to attract the students' attention due to its unique characters. For the students, it is suggested that they can use comic strips in learning reading comprehension because they can help them comprehend the concept of the reading text easily. For the future researchers, it is suggested to conduct the research in one full semester. It is also expected that the result of this research can be used as a consideration to conduct a research dealing with the similar topic but using different research design, such as CAR on increasing the students' reading comprehension achievement using comic strips.

CHAPTER 1. INTRODUCTION

This chapter presents some aspects related to the topic of the research. It includes research background, research problem, research objective, and research contributions. All of them are discussed respectively below.

1.1 Research Background

English becomes the universal language that almost people around the world use it as the tool to build their communication. It is widely recognized that English has important roles in the world of humans' opportunities such as science, technology, academic, economic, politics, business and many others. Therefore, people are expected to be able to master English in order to have a better job in the globalization era.

English is taught as a foreign language in almost every school in Indonesia. Based on the 2013 Curriculum (Kurikulum 2013/ K-13), English is stated as the compulsory subject that must be learnt by the students of junior high school and senior high school. Therefore, the students are expected to master English through the four language skills: listening, speaking, reading and writing. Reading is one of the important skills in learning English besides listening, speaking and writing. Therefore, the students will be able to develop their vocabulary, get much information, and learn many things by reading. Reading comprehension focuses on the students' ability to understand the whole content of the texts. It can be indicated through how students answer the questions dealing with the text given.

According to Grellet (1996:8), reading comprehension is the process of understanding, guessing, predicting, checking, and asking some specific information from the content of the text. In addition, Oberholzer (2005) states that reading comprehension is the process of understanding the important point of the content, not only knowing the mechanical skill of reading but also finding the specific information from the text. Therefore, the students are expected to comprehend the specific information that they get through reading.

Based on the preliminary study at SMPN 2 Siliragung by doing the interview with the eighth grade of the English teacher, the teacher explained that he only uses picture series in teaching reading comprehension to motivate the students. However, the use of picture series still cannot facilitate the students in comprehending the reading text. It was found out that the students got difficulties to find the appropriate pictures with sentences in the reading text. That is why, the students easily got bored in comprehending the reading text. Moreover, the English teacher never taught reading comprehension by applying other media. Referring to this condition, the researcher was interested in applying comic strips as the media to teach reading comprehension.

According to Wright and Sherman (1999), comic strips refer to visual media that consist of some pictures combined with words which are commonly used to build students' interest and competencies in comprehending the reading text and also make them easier to understand the meaning of the text. Thus, the students will get the concept of the reading text easily through reading the text while looking to the pictures of the comic strips. In addition, Driks and Opper (1902) in Gordon (1998:37) state that comic strips as the featuring some prominent characters which cover sequential panels, continuing characters, and word balloons. Therefore, it was expected that using comic strips in teaching reading comprehension could make students interested in their learning process because comic strips are quite different from what they usually got in their reading class. That is why, the researcher chose comic strips as the media to be used in the classroom.

There were three previous researches about the use of comic strips as the media in teaching reading comprehension. The first research was an experimental research conducted by Soviyah and Wulandari (2017) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension that included the seventh grade students of 7B as the control class and 7C as the experimental class. The result of this research showed that there was a significant effect on the seventh grade students' reading comprehension achievement on descriptive text at SMPN 9 Yogyakarta. The second research was an experimental research conducted by Pradana (2017) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension that included the seventh grade students of SMPN 3 Pagedongan. There were 23 students as the experimental class and also 23 students as the control class. The result of this research showed that there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the seventh grade students' reading comprehension on descriptive text at SMPN 3 Pagedongan. The third research was an experimental research conducted by Awalta et al. (2015) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension on descriptive text. The participants of this research were the 7B and 7C classes. The result of this research showed that there was a significant effect of teaching reading comprehension on descriptive text through comic strips at SMP Negeri 22 Pontianak.

Dealing with the explanation above, there was a similarity among those previous researches and the present research, that is, using comic strips as teaching and learning materials. However, the differences were: (1) The participants of the research. Those previous researches were conducted on the seventh grade students. Therefore, the present research was conducted on the eighth grade students; (2) The genre of the texts. Those previous researches used descriptive text as the learning material but the present research used narrative text as the learning material; (3) The research design. Those previous researches received the treatment twice but the present research received the treatment three times. Therefore, the researcher conducted an experimental research entitled "The Effect of Using Comic Strips on the Eighth Grade Students' Reading Comprehension Achievement".

1.2 Research Problem

Based on the background above, the research problem was formulated as follows:

"Was there any significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung?" > Siliragung mana?

1.3 Research Objective

Based on the research problem, the objective of this research was as follows: to find out whether or not the use of comic strips had a significant effect on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung.

1.4 Research Contributions

The results of this research are expected to give contribution to the following people:

1.4.1 Empirical Contribution

The result of this research is expected to be useful for the students to get a new experience how to comprehend the reading text through comic strips. The researcher hopefully can motivate the students in learning reading comprehension through the interesting media. Teaching reading comprehension by using comic strips will make the students more active, relax, and fun in the class. The media can help them learn with the easiest way without getting difficulties to understand the reading text.

1.4.2 Practical Contribution

The result of this research can be used as an alternative way by the English teacher to create a relaxed atmosphere in the classroom which include comic strips as media in teaching reading comprehension. It is also expected that the result of this research can give the English teacher an idea in teaching reading comprehension by using comic strips to make the teaching and learning process become more enjoyable and more interesting.

1.4.3 Theoretical Contribution

Theoretically the research result is expected to be a reference and information for the English teacher in teaching reading comprehension by using comic strips to improve the students' reading comprehension achievement. Besides, it can be used as a reference for other researchers to conduct a research in a longer period of time in giving the treatments, in order to gain a better result since this research only took 3 meetings that were conducted online. Therefore, it is requested for future researchers to conduct the research in one full semester, if they are interested in conducting the research with the same design, that is, experimental design.

CHAPTER II. LITERATURE REVIEW

This chapter presents the discussion of some literatures related to the research topic. It includes reading comprehension, reading comprehension achievement, narrative text, comic strips, the strengths of using comic strips in teaching reading comprehension, the weaknesses of comic strips in teaching reading comprehension, the procedures of teaching reading comprehension using comic strips, the previous researches review and the research hypothesis. All of them are discussed respectively below.

2.1 Reading Comprehension

Reading is the important skill in learning English besides listening, speaking and writing. According to Anderson et al. (1985), reading is the process of concluding the meaning from the written texts. Therefore, in order to grab some information related to the text, the students have to know the meanings of some words in the text. Besides, Wikson et al. (1987) state that reading is the process of understanding the reading text in which the readers simultaneously use their background knowledge and skill related to the topic, in order to construct the meanings of the text. Therefore, in order to be a good reader, the students must have the knowledge and skill to know the various purposes of reading text that can influence the way the students' learn. Being able to read is needed to develop and to enrich students' knowledge. Ahmadi (2012) states that the purpose of reading is to gain the moral value or message from the text that the writer tries to convey for the readers.

Comprehension is one of the basic skills that must be mastered by the students to be the fundamental goal of reading. Duke (2003) states that comprehension is a process in which the readers try to interpret the meaning of the reading text that needs the combination of the prior knowledge, previous experience, the information provided and the readers' perspective related to the text. Meanwhile, Grellet (1996) defines reading comprehension as the process of understanding, guessing, predicting, checking, and asking some specific information from the content. It means that the students are expected to be able to understand the whole contents of the text, grab as much information as they can, predict the meanings of some words, and get the specific ideas from the text. Kintsch and Van Dijk (1983) state that reading comprehension as the ability of creating, guessing and interpreting the meaning from the text. It aims at getting the specific point from the text rather than only knowing the meaning from the individual word or sentence.

According to Otero and Kintsch (1992), reading comprehension is the activate skill how the reader tries to comprehend the word meanings and understand the sentences of the text. Therefore, In order to understand the text, the reader needs some activities such as: concluding the main idea from the text and linking the ideas of the text coherently. Furthermore, Grellet (1996) says that reading comprehension is the way to understand a written text and find the important point from the text including the required information from the text. In addition, Kustaryo (1988) states that comprehension needs the ability to understand some vocabularies of the text, find the relationships among words and concepts, organize the ideas, recognize the author's purpose, make a judgment and evaluate the text.

Reading comprehension covers some indicators that the students should achieve in order to improve their reading comprehension skill. Hennings (1997) classifies reading comprehension into 4 aspects of comprehension which are: word comprehension, sentence comprehension, paragraph comprehension and text comprehension. In this research, the researcher only focused on word comprehension, sentence comprehension and text comprehension. It is because there is no text written in the forms of paragraphs on the elements of comic strips. Therefore, the researcher did not use paragraph comprehension to be the focus of reading comprehension achievement test in this research. The following part discusses those parts of the aspects of reading comprehension.

2.1.1 Word Comprehension

Comprehending word meaning is needed by the students because the students cannot get what the meaning of the text is and understand the whole contents of the text if they cannot recognize the word meanings. This idea is supported by Burns (1984) who says that the important point in reading comprehension is to understand the word meanings. It means that by understanding the word meanings, the readers will be able to comprehend the text easily. In order to understand the whole text, the reader must be able to identify the individual word first then conclude all of the words in the text to understand the whole content of the text.

Here is an example of word comprehension:

She could have drowned if a dove up at nearby tree had not helped her. Seeing that the ant was in trouble, the dove quickly plucked a leaf and dropped it onto the water near the struggling ant.

What is the synonym of the word “trouble”?

- a. Problem
- b. Solution
- c. Safety
- d. Protect

The answer is: A

Zaida, (2013). Practice Your English Competence 2

2.1.2 Sentence Comprehension

Comprehending a sentence is needed by the students to understand the meaning of each sentence completely. Wood (1991) defines that sentence refers to the smallest unit in the text that expresses a complete idea. It can be said that each sentence in the reading text contains some ideas or messages that should be understood by the students. Grellet (1996) also suggests that in order to comprehend the whole content of the text, it would be better to understand the meaning of some words constructed in sentences than to understand the meaning of word by word.

Here is an example of sentence comprehension:

The Ant and the Dove

One hot day, an ant was searching for some water. After walking around for some time, she came to a spring. To reach the spring, she had to climb up a blade of grass. While making her way up, she slipped and fell into the water. She could have drowned if a dove up a nearby tree had not helped her. Seeing that the ant was in trouble, the dove quickly plucked a leaf and dropped it onto the water near the struggling ant. The ant moved towards the leaf and climbed up there. Soon, it carried her safety to dry ground.

Just as that time, a hunter nearby was throwing out his net towards the dove, hoping to trap it. Guessing what he was about to do, the ant quickly bit him on the heel. Feeling the pain, the hunter dropped his net. Quickly, the dove fled away to safety.

What happened when the ant was making its way up?

- a. The ant slipped from the grass.
- b. The ant fell into the water.
- c. The ant slipped and fell into the water.
- d. The ant drowned into the water.

The answer is: C

Zaida, (2013). Practice Your English Competence 2

2.1.3 Text Comprehension

The main purpose of reading comprehension is to comprehend the whole text. According to McWhorter (1989), a whole text consists of words, sentences, and paragraphs. Thus, it can be said that the readers have to understand the whole parts of the text such as words, sentences and paragraphs and then the students have to combine them in order to understand the complete meanings of the text.

Here is an example of text comprehension:

The Ant and the Dove

One hot day, an ant was searching for some water. After walking around for some time, she came to a spring. To reach the spring, she had to climb up a blade of grass. While making her way up, she slipped and fell onto the water.

She could have drowned if a dove up a nearby tree had not helped her. Seeing that the ant was in trouble, the dove quickly plucked a leaf and dropped it onto the water near the struggling ant. The ant moved towards the leaf and climbed up there. Soon, it carried her safety to dry ground.

Just as that time, a hunter nearby was throwing out his net towards the dove, hoping to trap it. Guessing what he was about to do, the ant quickly bit him on the heel. Feeling the pain, the hunter dropped his net. Quickly, the dove fled away to safety.

What is the moral value of the story?

- a. We should help an ant when it needs help
- b. Every good deed do for others will surely come back for us
- c. Don't play in the river too often
- d. Be a good person everywhere

The answer is: B

Zaida, (2013). Practice Your English Competence 2

2.2 Reading Comprehension Achievement

Glenberg and Epstein (1987) state that the way to measure the students' ability in comprehending the text is by giving them test in order to know the students' reading comprehension achievement. As stated by Huges (2003), a test can be the tool to measure how successful the students have been achieving the learning objective of the subject. The result of reading comprehension test can be seen from the students' scores. In this research, reading comprehension achievement test was the result of reading activity after the students were taught by using comic strips for the experimental class and without comic strips for the control class.

Heaton (1990) states that there are some types of tests to measure the students' scores covering: multiple choice items, true/false items, re-arrangement items, jumble sentences, ordinary completion items, completion of information in tables, and open-ended questions. In this research, the researcher chose multiple choice and true/false items as the test type to measure the students' achievement of reading comprehension that contained 3 aspects of reading comprehension, they were: word comprehension, sentence comprehension and text comprehension.

2.3 Narrative Text

A narrative text is an imaginative story to entertain people or the readers, but sometimes narrative text can be the factual text as well. Most students love imaginary stories. When the students read a narrative text, they will tend to believe that all the characters and events have the relationship with their lives. According to Anderson (1998), the purpose of narrative text is to amuse or to entertain the readers. Anderson (1998) states that reading narrative text is more interesting when it is told by the story teller. Anderson (1998) states that narrative text has language features as follows: nouns that identify the specific characters and places in the story, adjectives that provide accurate descriptions of the characters and settings, using simple past tense and simple past continuous tense and using direct speech.

According to Neo (2005), there are many different types of narrative text. Those are fable, humor, romance, crime, real life fiction, theoretical fiction, mystery, fantasy, science fiction, diary novels and adventure. In this research, the researcher chose fable to be the theme of narrative text that was taught to the students. Narrative text of fable consists of some types of animals that are living in the jungle and they can talk each other like humans. Such a story usually conveys some moral values such as the narrative text of the mouse deer and the tiger. The moral value of that narrative text is not to underestimate others because such a person may be smarter than you". Therefore, the students not only enjoy to read the narrative text and know how the narrative text looks like but they can also absorb the moral value of the story then apply it in their daily lives. Based on Anderson (1998), there are some generic structures of narrative text: orientation, complication, events and coda.

- a. Orientation: In this part the writer tries to introduce the characters that involve in the story. The indicators generally given are: where the action is located and when it takes place.
- b. Complication (Sequence of Events): In this part, there will be some problems that must be faced by the main characters. The complication will make the story more exciting to be followed by the readers. The complication usually appears in the middle of the story.
- c. Resolution: Where the problem in the story is solved by the main characters, whether the problem of the story is a happy ending or a sad ending.
- d. Coda: The lesson that the readers can learn from the story, it consists of a moral value from the story. Nevertheless, coda does not usually appear in the story because the writer has a purpose that the readers have to think by themselves what exact the moral value containing in the story.

2.4 Comic Strips

Comic strips refer to visual media that utilize panels (Individual frame), having a minimum of one and maximum of twelve panels that consisting of some pictures in sequential panels combining with words inside the balloons (Smith, 2006). Generally, comic strips are drawn by individual cartoonist usually published on newspapers, magazines, and so on. According to Wikipedia (2019), comic strip is a sequential of stories that utilize pictures arranged in interconnected panels to show the readers a sense of humor or form of narrative completed with balloons and captions.

According to Saraceni (2003), comic strips consist of some elements: panels, gutter, balloons and caption. (1) Panel is an individual frame of a single drawing that describes a single moment. Each page normally consists of one until twelve panels; (2) Gutter is the space that separates two panels within a comic strips. However, this gutter is not always needed by the drawer of comic strips; (3) Balloons refer to the graphic convention that are mostly used to allow words as representing the speech or thought of each characters in the comic strips. Each tail of the balloon indicates the character who is speaking or thinking; (4) Caption represents what the narrators or the writers' voice tells the information of the story. The set of this caption is usually not inside the panels. Mostly, the caption separates from the rest of panels or the top of panels.

Comic strips provide the perfect vehicle for the teacher to teach students' reading comprehension using visual literacy abilities (McVicker, 2007). It means that the students can connect their sensory by seeing what they have read then connect it with other sensory of their experiences. Therefore, comic strips can be the media that the teacher uses to attract the students' attention and create the students' understanding of unknown words or sentences in the text, not only given the students understanding about the material using the verbal language but also comic strips can give the students' effect to memorize the story as well, interpret the meanings of the text and conclude the main idea that the story conveys. Thus, it can be concluded that comic strips refer to visual media that help the students in comprehending the reading text easily because the images in the series tell the readers about the story in a sequence event.

2.4.1 The Strengths of Using Comic Strips in Teaching Reading Comprehension.

Every medium of instruction has its own strengths and weaknesses. Yang (2003), states that there are some strengths of comic strip in teaching learning process such as: motivating, visual, permanent, intermediary, and popular.

a. Motivating

It must be the teachers' duty to encourage the students' motivation in learning reading comprehension become more interesting. Therefore, providing the teaching media is needed by the teacher to attract the students' attention in learning process. Comic strips can be the media that can motivate the students' attention to read the reading text easily. The utilize of various pictures with the combination of wonderful characters on the comic strips can capture and maintain the students' interest to read the text again and again in order to follow the story line. Furthermore, comic strips can increase the students' curiosity about what will happen next on the story line. Therefore, it can motivate the students to read another story of comic strips.

b. Visual

Comic strips provide the clear picture with the funny characters on the story. According to Versaci (2001), the visualization of each characters on comic strips can connect the students' emotion become one of the main characters of that story. It means that the combination of pictures with some characters on that story line can communicate more deeply than words because comic strips build the students' imagination about what exactly happened in the story. Yang (2003) also states that comic strips as the useful media can help the students in increasing their learning reading comprehension with the quality of visual aids. Therefore, the students can be helpful to comprehend the reading text in the limited time especially for the students who have less vocabulary knowledge.

c. Permanent

Another strength of comic strip is on the visual permanent which means that the text of the story and the characters have never changed all the time. As stated by William (1995) in Yang (2003) that comic strips are unique media compared with any movie or animation because they have visual permanents in which the characters, the plot, the text of the story are not changed which are different from animation or movie where all of the elements of the movie show the progress. It means that the plot, the story, and the characters on the movies can be changed and have progressed continuously based on the development era and technology.

d. Intermediary

In order to face the students' difficulties in comprehending the reading text, the teacher can guidance them by solving their problems with comic strips. Comic strips can help the students to comprehend the reading text with the easiest way especially for the students who are less experience in learning English or the students who are not familiar with the story or the words contain in the text. Therefore, in this situation, comic strips can be the mediators to give clear information about the meaning of the story for the students who need special help.

e. Popular

Comic strips are popular reading stories for children. Generally, the children are familiar with any kinds of story books in their lives. Comis strips are said as the popular media because they have some interesting stories completed with some colors that make them more beautiful. In addition, Marrison (2002) in Yang (2003) suggests that in order to make the learning process more fun, the teacher can incorporate the popular culture into the curriculum, bring the separation of the students' feelings between their lives in and out of the school. Therefore, it can build the students' understanding more deeply through the popular culture that they have experienced or have not experience.

2.4.2 The Weaknesses of Using Comic Strips in Teaching Reading Comprehension

Besides Yang (2003) expressed all strengths of using comic strips they are: motivating, visual, permanent, intermediary and popular. However, Chow (2010) mentions the weakness of using comic strips in teaching reading comprehension. The weakness is comic strips use the informal language rather than the formal language. Comic strips refer to media that have existed since 1900's. A lot of children and adults used to read comics in their free time. Actually, comic is created to attract the children with an interesting story not for an educational purposes. That is why, comic does not use formal language but it is using informal language. As stated by Chow (2010), the language that is usually used in the comic strips are the language for daily conversation such as the use of idioms, slangs, onomatopoeia and abbreviation. (1) Idiom is an expression that has an unpredictable meaning, for example “ That exercise is like a piece of cake” the underlined idiom means “That exercise is too easy”; (2) Slang is informal language consisting of words and expressions that the meaning will not be found in the dictionary such as” Lit” which means super cool or amazing; (3) onomatopoeia means the imitation of sound in the form of words such as “meow” is the sound of a cat; (3) abbreviation is a word or a phrase that has a shortened form such as “a.m” abbreviation from ante meridiem. Chow (2010) also adds that it will not be meaningful if the informal language used in the comic strips cannot be understood by the students since the students only learn formal language in their school. Furthermore, the idioms or slangs in the comic strips sometimes are not appropriate with the students' culture because not all words of idioms and slangs have good meanings.

In order to anticipate the weakness, teachers have to be smart in choosing the words that will be used in the comic strips and to minimize the use of idioms and abbreviations. If the students still do not know the meanings of certain words, the teacher can give them a clue to dig their understanding in order to comprehend the reading text. As stated by Csabay (2006), the teacher should select the language presented to the class which have to be suitable with the students' level in order to make the use of comic strips can be understood by them. Therefore, it becomes the important thing to choose the content of comic strips which have to be appropriate with the eighth grade students. In this research, the researcher adapted the weakness of the use of comic strips by doing the same thing as suggested by Csabay.

2.4.3 The Procedures of Teaching Reading Comprehension Achievement Using Comic Strips

There are three steps in teaching reading comprehension. As stated by Rivas (1999), the three steps in teaching reading comprehension are: pre-reading activities, while-reading activities and post-reading activities.

1. Pre-reading Activities

Following the finding of schema theory, interactive models of reading comprehension suggested that the readers have to reconstruct the information based on the text then connect it with their prior knowledge available. Nevertheless, there are two main goals of pre-reading activities that have to be achieved: 1) to seek students' involvement, interest and motivation; 2) to provide the language preparation.

In order to achieve these goals, the researcher conducted the teaching and learning reading comprehension by checking the students' prior knowledge by showing them the pictures and giving them riddles then asked them to guess what kind of animals stated in the riddles, in order to relate their prior knowledge with the reading text that they was going to learn. It aimed at attracting the students' involvement, interest and motivation to the material that was going to be discussed. In this activity, the teacher asked them some leading questions dealing with the pictures that the students observed and stimulated to deliver their opinions about the pictures.

2. While-reading activities

While-reading activity requires some factors to make the main goal achieved. It includes the strategy skill practice, linguistic development and helps the students understand the writer's text structures, content of text, purpose or messages convey in the reading text.

In this research, the teacher gave the students reading comprehension of narrative texts. Then, while-reading activity was conducted by identifying the generic structures and finding the language features used in reading text of narrative text related with comic strips. The students were also expected to find the main idea of the text and the unfamiliar words then found the meanings of those words. Besides, the students were given another task that consisted of multiple choice and identified the statements of true false. This activity was conducted in groups of four.

3. Post-reading activity

The main goal of post-reading activity is to help the students to incorporate what they have observed or read in reading text and also to relate the text to the learners' experience, knowledge and opinion. Besides, the post-reading activity is to offer the most consistent approach since the teacher provides a greater activity that will help the learners reflect their understanding and reflect on the text that they have observed such as a greater variety of creative task that can help the students relate their experience, prior knowledge, view, perception to the task.

In this research, the teacher asked the students to do the reflection about what they learned, what they got from the story, then concluded what the story told about while showing the pictures of comic strips.

2.5 The Previous Researches Review

There were three previous researches about the use of comic strips as the media in teaching reading comprehension conducted by: Soviyah and Wulandari (2017), Pradana (2017) and Awalta et al., (2015).

The first research was an experimental research conducted by Soviyah and Wulandari (2017) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension that included the seventh grade students of 7B as the control class and 7C as the experimental class. The result of this research showed that there was a significant effect on the seventh grade students' reading comprehension achievement on descriptive text at SMPN 9 Yogyakarta. It can be proved from the result of the pre-test (52.80) and the mean score of the post-test (75.45).

The second research was an experimental research conducted by Pradana (2017) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension that included the seventh grade students of SMPN 3 Pagedongan. There were 23 students as the experimental class and also 23 students as the control class. The result of post-test showed that sig (2-tailed) stated 0.001 that was less than sig 0.005. Therefore, it can be said that there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the seventh grade students' reading comprehension achievement on descriptive text at SMPN 3 Pagedongan.

The third research was an experimental research conducted by Awalta et al., (2015) who used comic strips as media to teach reading comprehension on descriptive text. The participants of this research were the 7B and 7C classes. The mean score of post-test showed 0.61 that was larger than 0.51 but less than 1.00 and could be categorized as moderate. Therefore, it can be said that there was a significant effect of teaching reading comprehension on descriptive text through comic strips at SMP Negeri 22 Pontianak.

Dealing with the explanation above, there was a similarity among those previous researches and the present research that was, using comic strips as teaching and learning media. The differences were: (1) The participants of the research. Those previous researches were conducted on the seventh grade students. Therefore, the present research was conducted on the eighth grade students; (2) The genre of of texts. Those previous researches used descriptive text as the learning material but the present research used narrative text as the learning material; (3) The research design. Those previous researches received the treatment twice but the present research received the treatment three times.

2.6 Research Hypothesis

Based on the research problem and the review of related literature above, the hypothesis of this research was formulated as follows: "There was a significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement".

CHAPTER III. RESEARCH METHODS

This chapter presents the methods to conduct this research. It includes research design, research context, research participants, data collection methods and data analysis method. All of them are discussed respectively below.

3.1 Research Design

The objective of this research was to investigate whether or not there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung. The researcher used quasi experimental design with post-test only design. According to Cresswell (2012), in the experimental research, the researcher tests a procedure in order to determine whether or not it gives a significant effect on the dependent variable. In the quasi experimental research, there were two classes that were chosen as the participants. One class as the experimental class and the other class as the control class. The two classes were chosen as the participants who were determined by using cluster random sampling based on the result of homogeneity test. The result of the homogeneity test was heterogeneous. So, the two classes were chosen as the experimental and the control classes which had the closest mean scores. The experimental class received the treatment that was taught reading comprehension by using comic strips. Meanwhile, the control class did not receive the treatment, but it was taught reading comprehension by using picture series usually used by the English teacher in teaching reading comprehension. The treatments were conducted in three meetings for both classes. After the treatments, the two classes were given reading comprehension test in the form of objective test. Then, the result of reading comprehension test was compared to find the mean difference. The diagram of the design can be illustrated as follows:

Group	Treatment	Post-Test
A	→ X →	O
B	→	O

Notes: A : Experimental Class

B : Control Class

X : Treatment

O : Post Test

(Creswell, 2012: 310).

The procedures of the research design were as follows:

1. Administering a homogeneity test to all classes of eighth grade students at SMPN 2 Siliragung in the academic year 2020/2021.
2. Analyzing the scores of homogeneity test by using Analysis of Variance (ANOVA).
3. Determining the two classes to be the experimental class and the control class based on the result of homogeneity test. The result of homogeneity test was heterogeneous because the significant level was lower than the significant degree (0.05).
4. Giving treatments to the experimental class by teaching reading comprehension using comic strips while the control class was taught reading comprehension by using picture series usually used by the English teacher.
5. Giving the try out test to one of the classes that did not belong to the experimental and the control classes. The purpose of giving try out test was to know whether the test met the criteria or not in which the test had to appropriate with the content validity, the reliability, and the difficulty index of the test.
6. Revising the post-test based on the result of try out test.
7. Giving the post-test to both of classes, the experimental and the control classes after the treatments with the same material and the same time allocation.
8. Analyzing the result of the post-test scores by using t-test formula in SPSS (Statistical Package for the Social Sciences) to know whether or not there was a significant difference of mean scores of the two classes.
9. Drawing conclusion whether or not the use of comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement had a significant effect based on the data analysis to answer the research problem.

3.2 The Research Context

This research was conducted at SMPN 2 Siliragung located in Banyuwangi. According to McMillan (1992), purposive method refers to a method that is used to select particular elements from the population that must be representative and informative with the topic. Thus, a purposive method is a method employed in choosing a research area based on a certain purpose or reason. The researcher chose this school as the research area because of some reasons as follows: (1) The English teacher never taught reading comprehension by using comic strips for the eighth grade students. Based on the information collected by the researcher through interview with the English teacher, the teacher usually teaches the students by using picture series. (2) The Headmaster and the English teacher gave permission to conduct this experimental research at SMP Negeri 2 Siliragung.

3.3 Research Participants

The participants of this research were the eighth grade students of SMPN 2 Siliragung in the 2020/2021 academic year. According to the information collected by the researcher through interview with the English teacher, there were five classes of the eighth grade students (A to E) with about 32 students for each class. In this research, the researcher chose two classes of the eighth grade which were selected as the experimental and the control classes based on the result of homogeneity test. The purpose of determining the research participants was to collect the data that was required in this research. The participants were determined after administering the homogeneity test. The homogeneity test was administered to five classes of the eighth grade students at SMPN 2 Siliragung. The researcher analyzed the data by using ANOVA (Analysis of Variance) on SPSS (Statistical package for the social sciences) to know whether the population was homogeneous or not. The result of the homogeneity test was heterogeneous because the significant value of the Anova was lower than 0.05. So, the participants were chosen from the two classes who had the closest mean score, those were VIII B and VIII E classes.

3.4 Data Collection Methods

In conducting the research, it was important for the researcher to collect the data. The data collection method was used to collect the data concerning with the research problem. The data of this research was the students' reading comprehension scores. The students' reading comprehension scores was collected by using reading comprehension test as the primary data, whereas the interview and documentation were collected to get the secondary data. The following parts are the discussions.

3.4.1 Reading Comprehension Test

a. Homogeneity Test, Try Out, and Post-Test

Homogeneity test was the test to decide which classes belonged to the experimental and the control classes. In this research the homogeneity test was given to the five classes of the eighth grade students. The test was given in the form of multiple choice that consisted of 20 test items with 4 options. The result of homogeneity test was analyzed by using ANOVA to know whether the result of homogeneity test was homogeneous or not. The result of homogeneity test can be seen in Table 4.2. The result of the Anova analysis showed that the significant was lower than 0.05. So, the population of the research was heterogeneous, then two classes which had the closest mean scores were chosen as the participants of the research.

Try out test was given to the class that did not belong to the experimental and the control classes. According to Djiwandono (1996), the purpose of administering the try out test is to know the test validity, the reliability coefficient of the test and the difficulty index of the test items. Try out test was conducted after the researcher gave the treatments to both of the classes (experimental and control classes). In conducting the try out test, the researcher used the objective test in the form of multiple choice test that consisted of 25 test items of multiple choice questions with 4 options and 10 test items in the form of true/false statements, so the total number of the try-out test was 35 items.

The reading comprehension post-test in this research was conducted to know whether the use of comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement had a significant effect or not. Reading comprehension post-test was given to both of the classes (experimental and control classes) after the researcher gave the treatments. The researcher conducted the post-test to the experimental class after they received the treatments that was taught by using comic strips. Meanwhile, the control class was given the post-test after the students were taught reading comprehension by using picture series usually used by the English teacher. The test consisted of 20 test items of multiple choice questions with 4 options and 10 test items in the form of true/false statements, so the total number of the test items was 30 items. This post-test was given to the experimental and the control classes after the researcher conducted the try out test. Therefore, it was important for the researcher to consider about the validity, the reliability, the difficulty index, the instructions and the time allocation that was used in the post test.

b. The Validity of the Test

Test can be said as a good test if the test meets the criteria in which the test must be valid. According to Hughes (2003), the test can be said as a valid test if it measures what is intended to be measured. Heaton (1990) classifies validity into 4 types, that is, face validity, content validity, construct validity and empirical validity. In order to know the students' reading comprehension achievement, the researcher conducted the reading comprehension test that had to be based on the content validity. The test can be said has content validity if the test contains a representative sample of the course. In this case, the curriculum that the English teacher uses is the 2013 Curriculum (Kurikulum 2013/ K-13) as the basic course to teach English. Therefore, in this research the material that contained on the reading comprehension constructed based on the basic competence stated in the 2013 Curriculum (Kurikulum 2013/ K-13). Besides, the test items were constructed based on the indicators to be measured in reading comprehension achievement covering: word comprehension, sentence comprehension and text comprehension.

c. The Reliability of the Test

Test can be said as a good test if the test meets the criteria that must be reliable. According to Hughes (2003) the test can be said as a reliable test if the result of the test is consistent. It means that the result of the test should be consistent whenever the test will be administered. It can be seen from the result of the reliability coefficient.

The result of try-out test was analyzed by using SPSS calculating system. The procedures of the analysis were as follows.

1. Open SPSS Program
2. Set the name of the variables in the variable view (Name Q1 for the question 1, Q2 for the question 2 and soon)
3. Choose data view to set the data based on the variables, those were the initial name of the students and question 1 to question 35 (give score 1 for the correct answer of each items and 0 for the wrong one)
4. Click Analyze, scale, reliability analysis
5. Move variable question 1 to question 35 to “items” column
6. Click model, choose “Alpha”
7. Click OK
8. Categorize the result of reliability coefficient based on the criteria of reliability written by Sudijono as follows.

Criteria of Reliability
0.90-1.00	= very high
0.70-0.89	= high
0.50-0.69	= fair
0.30-0.49	= low

(Sudijono, 1996: 229).

d. The Difficulty Index

It was important for the researcher to determine which items of the try out test that had to be used as the reading comprehension post-test for both of the classes (the experimental and the control classes). As stated by Heaton (1990), the difficulty index of test items shows how each items will be categorized as: too easy, difficult or fair. In order to know whether the test item belongs to: too easy, fair or difficult, the researcher analyzed each items of the test by using the formula as follows:

$$FV = \frac{R}{N}$$

Notes: FV= Facility Value (the difficulty index)

R = the number of students who answer the question correctly

N = the number of students who take the test

Criteria of the Difficulty Index:

0.00-0.19	= difficult
0.20- 0.80	= fair
0.81-1.00	= easy

(Djiwandono, 1996:141)

3.4.2 Interview

According to McMillan (1992), Interview is the form of data collection in which questions are asked orally and the subjects' responses are recorded. McMillan (1992) classifies interview into three types, namely structured interview, unstructured interview, and semi structured interview. Structured interview refers to a type of interview in which the interviewer asks the questions based on the scenario or list of questions; unstructured interview refers to a type of interview in which the interviewer asks the questions which are not based on the scenario or list of questions; and semi structured interview refers to interview that contains the series of open ended questions. In this research, the researcher used semi structured interview to collect the secondary data. Although it used an interview guide, the interviewer still could develop the question to gain information deeply. In this research, the interview was conducted as the preliminary study to obtain the information about the curriculum, the textbooks and the media used by the English teacher of the eighth grade in teaching reading comprehension at SMPN 2 Siliragung. The result of interview can be seen in Appendix C.

3.4.3 Documentation

Documentation is a method that is used to obtain the data from the written documents, such as notes, soft file, books and other documents. Arikunto (2010) defines documentation as collecting data from the written things which can be in the form of transcript, books, newspapers or magazines. In this research, the documentation was used as the supporting data related to the list of the participants' initial names (the experimental and the control classes).

3.5 Data Analysis Method

The data of this research was conducted from reading comprehension achievement test and the data were analyzed by using t-test with SPSS (Statistical package for the social sciences) to find whether or not there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the students' reading comprehension achievement. The formula of t-test was as follows:

1. open the SPSS program.
2. set the data in the variable view.
3. enter the data
4. click Analyze, Compare Means, Independent-Sample t-Testclick the variable that is examined in column test variable(s)
5. click Options and make sure the confidence interval 95% on confidence interval percentage and code exclude cause analysis by analysis then click continue
6. click Ok

If the probabilities ($P_{sig} \leq 0.05$) the null hypothesis (H_0) was rejected and the alternative hypothesis (H_a) was accepted; which means that there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung.

CHAPTER V. CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS

This chapter presents the conclusion of the research findings and suggestions. The suggestions are proposed for the English teacher, the students, and future researchers.

5.1 Conclusion

Regarding to the results of the data analysis and the hypothesis verification discussed in the previous chapter, it can be concluded that there was a significant effect of using comic strips on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung

5.2 Suggestions

Since teaching reading comprehension by using comic strips gave a significant effect on the eighth grade students' reading comprehension achievement at SMPN 2 Siliragung, this research hopefully will be useful for the following people:

5.2.1 The English Teacher

It is suggested for the English teacher to build the students' reading comprehension achievement by using comic strips as the teaching media. Even though they learnt through online class, they could still show their enthusiasm in competing to answer questions given by the researcher and showed their interest in reading the narrative text in the form of comic strips because of the interesting images. Furthermore, when they can learn reading comprehension in the classroom they will more active in the class than when they learn through the zoom meeting as what they did. Therefore, it is hoped that comic strips can be used by the English teacher when the pandemic of the corona virus is over.

5.2.2 The Students

It is suggested that the students can use comic strips in learning reading comprehension because they can help them comprehend the concept of the reading text easily.

5.2.3 Future Researchers

It is suggested for future researchers to conduct the research in a longer period of time in giving the treatments, in order to gain a better result since this research only took 3 meetings that were conducted online. Therefore, it is requested for future researchers to conduct the research in one full semester. It is also expected that the result of this research can be used as a consideration to conduct a research dealing with the similar topic but using different research design, different level of students and different text genres for example, the use of comic strips to improve the tenth grade students' reading comprehension achievement on recount text.

The Mousedeer and the Crocodiles

One day, a mousedeer saw a lot of fruits on the other side of the river. He wanted to eat them but he could not cross the river. There were many crocodiles there, but there was no bridge across the river.

The Mousedeer suddenly had an idea. He stood on the river side and called out. "Hello. Is anybody there?" The crocodile heard him. He swam fast to meet the Mousedeer and answered, "Hello, Mousedeer. How are you? Please come in." said the crocodile pretended to be friendly. He had a plan. As soon as the Mousedeer got near, he would snap him and eat him for breakfast. But the Mousedeer was standing on top of a big stone. In a proud voice he said, "Crocodile, I 'm here to do the King's order. The King will give away free meat to all crocodiles. He has sent me to count the number of all the crocodiles here."

The Crocodile was so happy that he forgot his plan to eat the Mousedeer. "Really? How will you count us?" "Please call all your family, relatives, friends and neighbours. Tell them to line up from here to the other side of the river," ordered the Mousedeer. Before long , all the crocodiles were in a long line across the river. Then, the Mousedeer jumped onto the back of one crocodile to another, counting loudly "One, Two, Three, Four." When he got to the last crocodile he said "One hundred!" and quickly jumped up to the land. “How many are we?” asked the crocodile. “One hundred. Hahaha , I fooled you! Thanks for giving me a bridge to cross the river. Bye!”

The Lion and the Mouse

Once upon a time, there lived a lion who ruled the forest. One day after eating his meal, the lion slept under a tree. A little mouse saw him and thought it would be fun to play on him. He began running up and down the sleeping lion. He ran up and slid down the tail. The lion woke up angrily with a loud roar. He grabbed the mouse with his huge paw. The mouse struggled but could not escape. The lion opened his big jaws to swallow him. The mouse was very scared. "Oh king, I am very scared. Please don't eat me. Forgive me this time. Please let me go. I shall never forget it and maybe one day I can help you," said the mouse. The lion was so amused by the idea of the mouse being able to help him that he lifted up his paw and let him go. "Thank you king, I will never forget your kindness," said the mouse. The lion replied, "you are lucky my friend that I've just eaten. Now go! But don't mess with me again or I will eat you roaaaar".

A Few days later, the lion was roaming the jungle. Hunters set a trap to catch the lion. The hunters hid behind the tree waiting for the lion to approach the trap. As he did the hunters pulled the ropes and caught him in the net. The lion started to roar loudly and tried to escape but the hunters fastened the net. They went back to the village to bring a cart to transport the lion. The lion was still roaring loudly. All the animals including the mouse heard the roar. "The king is in trouble," I must return the favor," said the mouse. He soon reached the lion. "Don't worry my king. I will set you free" said the mouse. He climbed up the trap and used his sharp little teeth to bite through the ropes.

Finally he freed the lion from the trap. The lion realized that even a little mouse can be a great help. "Thank you mouse" said the lion to the mouse. "I will never trouble you again. Live happily in my forest. You save the king's life. Now you are the prince of this forest" said the lion to the mouse. "Thank you king. Bye, see you soon," replied the mouse. "Oh... where are you going?" do you want to play on me and slide down on my tail?" asked the lion. Yeay..., said the mouse while climbing up to the lion's tail. The mouse started jumping on his back and sliding down his tail. After a while, the hunters came back with a big cart to carry the lion. The lion and the mouse saw them and started running towards them. The lion gave a big roar. "Roarr The lion was angry. The hunters were terrified and ran away back to the village. The lion and the mouse became friends forever.

C. Giving the story in the form of comic strips entitled “The peacock and The Crane”

The Peacock and the Crane

Once upon a time, there was a beautiful peacock in the woods. The peacock was very proud of its beauty. It would always flaunt its beautiful feathers and make fun of other birds.

1 Wow, peacock! Your feathers are so beautiful!

2 Colorful and shiny, aren't they gorgeous?

1 Yes, they are. I wish I could have colorful feathers just like yours!

2 Only I, the peacock, can have these beautiful feathers. Don't even dream about it!

3 Hmm... what a show off!

The peacock went to the riverside for some water. Suddenly, he saw a crane in the river.

The peacock walked towards the crane and show off his beautiful feathers.

1 Hi how are you? I've never seen you around

2 I am a crane!

Who is that? A long neck and cool legs. Looks quite elegant, but I don't like the feathers though 1 What can you do with those feathers? Grooming and showing off, what else can you do? It seems you look good on the outside but not inside.

The crane walked along the river.

1 A crane, huh? I am a peacock. I have feathers that are shiny and gorgeous!

1 Huh, she was not even surprised!

2 Oh right. They look good!

2 Look at all these colors of the rainbow on my feathers. What's wrong with yours? They look gray and dusty!

1 Yes, you are very beautiful. But, I am not envy with you at all

2 What? Don't lie! How could you not envy these beautiful feathers?

I can fly up into the sky with my wings. I travel around the world and go wherever I want.

2 Oh.. Gee! I see

HA...HA

The peacock felt so ashamed, he folded his feathers and closed his eyes with his hands. All the ravens laughed at peacock.

C. Giving the story in the form of comic strips entitled “The Ant and the grasshopper”

The Ant and the Grasshopper

Once upon a time, there lived a lazy grasshopper in the forest. He was playing the guitar and singing on a tree.

Chirp Chirp, I love summer! Chirp Chirp, I love singing

The grasshopper sang while resting on a tree on a hot summer day.

Heave ho, heave ho!

While taking a rest under the tree, the ant was sweating and slaving away

The grasshopper watched the trail of ants coming his way. Then the grasshopper laughed at the ant because the ant was working all summer long

1 Listen grasshopper, if you don't prepare some food for the winter now, you're going to starve!

1 Oh, there is plenty of time...why worry? I am going back to my singing now

2 Chirp...Chirp! I love summer.

He leant back on the tree and sang the song

In no time, summer went and the freezing winter came. The wind howled and buckets of snows fell from the winter sky

1 Oh... I am so hungry I am so cold

2 What if the ant was right and I starve to death?

The grasshopper went to look for food but instead of finding food, he got lost in the snow and he could barely move his legs anymore. Luckily, the grasshopper found the Ant's house

Knock ... knock ...! Please Ant... Will you give me some food? or even just a crumb ... please?

He mustered up enough energy to knock on the door. The grasshopper started to knock at the ant's door.

Don't worry, grasshopper! I have plenty of food. Come on in!

1 This is delicious. Ant, I am really sorry for making fun of you before, that was wrong of me

2 That's okay, you can help me next year!

The ant welcomed the grasshopper to enter his house.

The grasshopper went inside. He sat next to fire and ate until he couldn't eat anymore. He really enjoyed his food

It was then that grasshopper finally understood why the Ant had worked so hard in the summer and he was thankful that he had such a good friend like the Ant.

C. Giving the story entitled “The Ant and the Grasshopper” complete with pictures series

The Ant and the Grasshopper

Once upon a time, there lived a lazy grasshopper in the forest. He was playing the guitar and singing on a tree. “Chirp chirp, I love summer!” Chirp chirp, I love singing”. The grasshopper sang while resting on a tree on a hot summer day. While taking a rest under the tree, the ant was sweating and slaving away. “Heave ho, heave ho!” said the ant.

The grasshopper watched the trail of ants coming his way. “Heave ho...heave ho...” said the ant. “Hey, ant!” life is too short to work so hard!” ha...ha...” said the grasshopper. He laughed at the ant because the ant was working all summer long. “Listen grasshopper, if you don’t prepare some food for the winter now, you’re going to starve!” said the ant. Then the ant continued to bring his food.

“Oh, there is plenty of time....why worry?” I am going back to my singing now” said the grasshopper. He leant back on the tree and sang the song “Chirp...chirp!” I love summer. “Chirp...chirp!”

In no time, summer went and the freezing winter came. The wind howled and buckets of snows fell from the winter sky. “Oh ... I am so hungry, I am so cold” said the grasshopper. He walked through the winter. “What if the ant was right and I starve to death?” said the grasshopper. He felt so cold.

The grasshopper went to look for food but instead of finding food, he got lost in the snow and he could barely move his legs anymore. Luckily, the grasshopper found the Ant’s house. He mustered up enough energy to knock on the door.

“Knock ... knock ...!” Please Ant.... Will you give me some food?” or even just a crumb ... please?” asked the grasshopper. He knocked at the ant’s door. “Don’t worry, grasshopper!” I have plenty of food. Come on in!” said the Ant. The ant welcomed the grasshopper to enter his house.

The grasshopper went inside. He sat next to fire and ate until he couldn’t eat anymore. “This is delicious” said the grasshopper. He really enjoyed his food. “Ant, I am really sorry for making fun of you before, that was wrong of me” said the grasshopper to the Ant. “That’s okay, you can help me next year!” replied the Ant to the grasshopper.

It was then that grasshopper finally understood why the Ant had worked so hard in the summer and he was thankful that he had such a good friend like the Ant.

Panel 2: My dear friend I'm going to the nearby town, you must come to my place definitely!

Panel 3: One day as usual, a group of pigeons flew high in the sky to search of food. Suddenly one of the pigeons shouted and said.

Panel 4: 1 Hey just look down! Good amount of grains scattered. Let's go and eat them

Panel 5: 2 Stop! Do not go. You see, there are no field nearby but grains are scattered there. There's something fishy, please do not go

Panel 6: 1 Oh God our head always doubts each and everything, I am going to go and eat

Panel 7: 2 The whole group is gone. What's the point in me staying back.

Panel 8: Then all the pigeons flew down to eat the grains

Panel 9: Then the head of the pigeons followed the other pigeons flew down.

Panel 10: 2 We are caught in a net

Panel 11: Oh no what is this, I can't move my leg

Panel 12: All the pigeons listened to what their head had instructed and flew high together with a net and reached to the nearby town. When they arrived, the head of the pigeons called the rat

Panel 13: The rat ran out and brought all the other rats and they all cut the net with their sharp teeth and within seconds.

Panel 14: 1 Thanks a lot rat. We are really relieved now. Ok then, we shall leave now

Panel 15: 2 Forgive us and please help us

Panel 16: 1 If you had listened to me, we would not have fallen in trouble like this

Panel 17: Listen carefully... let's all fly together at the time so that we can fly off with a net and reached to the nearby town where my friend rat lived. He will release us

Panel 18: 1 Oh my dear friend rat!

Panel 19: 2 Who is that? Oh you. Welcome... welcome, what happened? How were you caught in a net? Wait and let me help you

Panel 20: 2 What is this? you have come all the way to my house and you say you are leaving without leaving any food in my house

Panel 21: 3 Ok! As you wish!

Panel 22: The rats and the pigeons had a very good feast and enjoyed the day together.

C. Giving the story entitled “The Pigeon and the Rat” complete with picture series.The Pigeon and the Rat

In a forest there lived a group of pigeons in a big tree and under the same tree a rat lived. The head of the pigeons and the rat were thick friends. One day the rat said “My dear friend I’m going to the nearby town, you must come to my place definitely,” said the rat. Then he left the place.

One day as usual, a group of pigeons flew high in the sky to search of food. Suddenly one of the pigeons shouted and said “hey just look down! A Good amount of grains scattered. Let’s go and eat them” said pigeon 1. “Stop! Do not go. You see, there are no field nearby but grains are scattered there. There’s something fishy, please do not go!” said the head of the pigeons. “Oh God our head always doubts each and everything, I am going to go and eat” said pigeon 2.

Then all the pigeons flew down to eat the grains. ”Hmm... the whole group is gone what’s the point in me staying back” said the head of the pigeons. Then the head of the pigeons followed the other pigeons flew down.

“Oh no what is this, I can’t move my legs” said the head of the pigeons. “We are caught in a net” said pigeon 2. “If you had listened to me, we would not have fallen in trouble like this” said the head of the pigeons. “Forgive us and please help us” said pigeon 2. Listen carefully... let’s all fly together at the time so that we can fly off with a net and reached to the nearby town where my friend rat lived. He will release us” said the head of the pigeons to his groups.

All the pigeons listened to what their head had instructed and flew high together with a net and reached to the nearby town. When they arrived, the head of the pigeons called the rat “Oh my dear friend rat!. “Who is that? Oh you. Welcome... welcome, what happened? How were you caught in a net? Wait and let me help you” said a rat.

The rat ran out and brought all the other rats and they all cut the net with their sharp teeth and within seconds. “Thanks a lot rat. We are really relieved now. Ok then, we shall leave now” said the head of the pigeons. “What is this? you have come all the way to my house and you say you are leaving without having any food in my house” replied the rat. “Ok! As you wish” said the head of the pigeons. The rats and the pigeons had a very good feast and enjoyed the day together.

Read the following text carefully then answer the questions by crossing a, b, c, or d on the answer sheet!

The Elephant and the Ant

Once upon a time, there lived an elephant in the forest. He was very proud of his big size. He always troubled other animals in the forest and made fun of them. One day, as he was walking through the forest, he saw a parrot sitting on a tree. "Ha...ha...ha...Hey you! What are you doing there?" said the elephant to the parrot "Don't you see me passing through?. I am the most powerful animal in the forest. Come on bow down to me!" said the elephant. "What bow down to you?" asked the parrot. "You don't know who you are talking to! I will teach you to respect me!" said the elephant while laughing at the parrot.

The parrot didn't bow down to the elephant. The angry elephant picked up the whole tree and began to shake it with his long trunk. The parrot could not sit on that tree anymore. He flew away. "Ha.....ha....ha.. Go..go fly away! Now you see what I can do? You are so weak in front of me!" said the elephant.

The proud elephant then walked away as always and he went to the river to drink water. Just beside the river, there lived an ant in a small ant hill. Every day the ant would collect food and every day the elephant would bother the ant.

The elephant then drew water using his big trunk and sprayed it on the ant. The water spoiled her food and the ant was also wet. "Ha...ha...ha..." laughed the elephant. "Laugh all you want, elephant. I will teach you a lesson someday" said the ant. "Oh! I am so scared! A tiny ant wants to teach me a lesson! Go away! I might crush you under my feet!" said the elephant

The next day as the ant stepped out to collect food, she saw that the elephant was sleeping. She immediately came up with a plan. She walked near him and slipped inside his trunk.

Once inside, she began to bite him until he woke up and started screaming in pain. “My trunk hurt so bad. Who is inside? Get out of there. Ahhh...” cried the elephant. Somebody please help me! Ahhh..Please!! Who is inside my trunk?. Get out!” cried the elephant.

The ant heard the elephant cry and came out from his trunk. The elephant was shocked to see the tiny ant. He was so afraid that the ant would bite him again then the elephant knelt down and began to apologize. “Please forgive me! I will never trouble you again!” said the elephant to the ant. Then, the elephant understood his mistake. He left that place and he never troubled animal after that.

Read the following text carefully then answer the questions by crossing a, b, c, or d on the answer sheet!

The Elephant and the Ant

Once upon a time, there lived an elephant in the forest. He was very proud of his big size. He always troubled other animals in the forest and made fun of them. One day, as he was walking through the forest, he saw a parrot sitting on a tree. “Ha...ha...ha...Hey you! What are you doing there?” said the elephant to the parrot. “Don’t you see me passing through?. I am the most powerful animal in the forest. Come on bow down to me!” said the elephant. “What bow down to you?” asked the parrot. “You don’t know who you are talking to! I will teach you to respect me!” said the elephant while laughing at the parrot.

The parrot didn’t bow down to the elephant. The angry elephant picked up the whole tree and began to shake it with his long trunk. The parrot could not sit on that tree anymore. He flew away. “Ha.....ha....ha.. Go..go fly away! Now you see what I can do? You are so weak in front of me!” said the elephant.

The proud elephant then walked away as always and he went to the river to drink water. Just beside the river, there lived an ant in a small ant hill. Every day the ant would collect food and every day the elephant would bother the ant.

The elephant then drew water using his big trunk and sprayed it on the ant. The water spoiled her food and the ant was also wet. “Ha...ha...ha...” laughed the elephant. “Laugh all you want, elephant. I will teach you a lesson someday” said the ant. “Oh! I am so scared! A tiny ant wants to teach me a lesson! Go away! I might crush you under my feet!” said the elephant

The next day as the ant stepped out to collect food, she saw that the elephant was sleeping. She immediately came up with a plan. She walked near him and slipped inside his trunk.

Once inside, she began to bite him until he woke up and started screaming in pain. “My trunk hurt so bad. Who is inside? Get out of there. Ahhh...” cried the elephant. Somebody please help me! Ahhh..Please!! Who is inside my trunk?. Get out!” cried the elephant.

The ant heard the elephant cry and came out from his trunk. The elephant was shocked to see the tiny ant. He was so afraid that the ant would bite him again then the elephant knelt down and began to apologize. “Please forgive me! I will never trouble you again!” said the elephant to the ant. Then, the elephant understood his mistake. He left that place and he never troubled animal after that.
