SUMARRY

In the process of writing this thesis, the problem is addressed onto analyzing Robert Langdon true Personality in Dan Brown's The Da Vinci Code. The analysis uses Henry Alexander Murray's Personology as psychological approach, which is collecting Robert Langdon manifest and latent needs of psychogenic. An inductive method is conducted to clarify the objective from general to specific one, included managing supporting-data those taken from library research and internet browsing. The goal of this thesis emphasizes on discovering the possibly of moral message behind Robert Langdon's true personality. The significance of this study is giving general reference of discovering a moral message behind main character's true personality in literary form, through applying psychogenic of personology. The end of the discussion is offering back the readers what they should argue having read the novel and this thesis, since the object of this literary research is fairly observed by selected theoretical approach.
