SUMMARY

English Code Mixing on the Advertisement Texts of Hotel 99 Jember; Eka Mirwadiva, 150110101022; 2019: 75 pages, English Department, Faculty of Humanities, Universitas Jember.

This study concerns with the phenomenon of code mixing that occurs in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. The object of this study is twenty advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember which are indicated using English code mixing to promote the hotel. These advertisement texts are posted in the official Instagram @hotel.99.jember. Theory of code mixing by Muysken (2000) is applied in this study. Further, this study also uses the proposition of Zohreh and Monireh (2013) about the reasons for using English code mixing in the advertisement.

This study applies qualitative research. The data are taken from twenty advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember that contain of code mixing. They are collected through document, questionnaire and interview methods. Then, the advertisement texts are analysed using theory of code mixing from Muysken (2000) who states that there are three types of code mixing namely insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization. Further, the results of interview is analysed using the proposition of Zohreh and Monireh (2013) who find that the reasons for using English code mixing in the advertisement are attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology.

The results of this study show that there are three types of code mixing processes that occur in the twenty advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. Those are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization. In this study, alternation type is dominantly used by the advertiser rather than the other types. Further, the occurrence of English code mixing in the advertisement texts does not give significant effect to the attention of the guests. However, it is interesting to still keep using English code mixing to promote the hotel because there are five out of thirty guests who are aware to the English code mixing used in the advertisement texts. Moreover there are two guests who are interested in staying in the Hotel 99 Jember because of the English code mixing used in the advertisement texts.

In addition, in this study there are four reasons of using English code mixing. They are attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology. It is in line with the study of Zohreh and Monireh. Moreover, the other results of this study show that the other reasons exist as the reasons of using English code mixing. They are efficient words, going public, showing identity, marketing strategy and long term investment. These are stated by the interviewees. By using English code mixing, the advertiser tries to attract the readers with the interesting promotion.

CHAPTER 1. INTRODUCTION

This chapter presents a general idea of the whole study to give a clear definition related to the topic of this study. The topic is about the phenomenon of code mixing which occurs in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. This chapter contains six subchapters. They are background of study, research topic, research problem, research questions, research purposes and research organization.

1.1 Background of Study

Code mixing is a phenomenon when lexical and grammatical structures from two languages appear in one sentence. According to Muysken (2000:1) “code mixing happens where lexical items and grammatical features from two languages appear in one sentence without changing the topic of conversation.” Code mixing phenomenon spreads very widely along with the globalization era. It happens both in the written or spoken texts. It most commonly appears in the multilingual country such as Indonesia. As multilingual societies, Indonesian people are possible to use two languages.

Mostly, Indonesian people mix the local languages such as Javanese and Madurese with Indonesian as the official language. Nowadays, along with the development of technology it is also common for Indonesian to mix English as an international language with Indonesian utterances. It is commonly found when they use social media such as Youtube, Instagram, Facebook, Twitter, Line, WhatsApp, Telegram etc.

Most people with various backgrounds such as public figures, educated people, businessmen, sellers, selebgram and so on do English code mixing into Indonesian when they post status in Twitter, Line, Facebook, and Instagram. Besides, many youtubers do English code mixing in their Youtube channels.

Furthermore, along with the development of technology the sellers or businessmen do English code mixing to promote their product, service and the brand name through social media such as Instagram.

Recently, the phenomenon of English code mixing is detected on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. The advertiser mixes English words within Indonesian utterances to promote the hotel. Then, the advertiser promotes the advertisement texts through official Instagram. The advertiser told that the use of English code mixing in the advertisement texts is intentionally appeared to affect the guests' attentions and to make them interested in the facilities being promoted.

According to Bachtia and Ritchie (2006: 19) "English is the important linguistic vehicle for the global advertisement." It means the occurrence of English code mixing in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember shows that English becomes the important role in the advertising world. Additionally, Piller (2003: 17) states that "English is the most commonly used language in advertising especially in non-English speaking countries or multilingual countries." It is the evidence that English has a power in the advertising world in a multilingual country such as Indonesia.

Hotel 99 Jember is the one of newly established hotels in Jember. The grand opening of Hotel 99 Jember took place on 9th September 2018. The name 99 is taken from the date and the month when the hotel was opened. This hotel is established to give the best quality services. Having tagline "Best Guest House in Jember" this hotel is located at Jl. Darmawangsa 99 Jubung Sukorambi Jember. The location is near Tawang Alun bus station. The hotel with the adorable price has many facilities such as Air Conditioning, internet Hi-Speed Wifi, 55 rooms, prayer room and resto cafe.

To promote the hotel, the advertiser posts the advertisement through Traveloka, Pegipegi and official Instagram @hotel.99.jember. Through this Instagram the advertiser posts the advertisement texts using English code mixing. This is the example.

”Haloo traveller, weekend sebentar lagi nih, masih bingung cari hotel untuk menginap?
Booking segera @hotel.99.jember”

From the advertisement text above, the advertiser is inserting some English words namely traveller, weekend and booking into Indonesian utterances. To address travellers, weekend and booking the advertiser prefers to use English words rather than Indonesian words to attract customers’ attentions. This phenomenon is categorized as English code mixing.

By this explanation, the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember are chosen as the object of study because this phenomenon is interesting. As it is told by the staff that most guests of Hotel 99 Jember are local people from Jember and other cities such as Denpasar, Banyuwangi, Lumajang, Pasuruan, Surabaya and etc, but, the advertiser still inserts some English words in the advertisement texts.

The use of English code mixing on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember is very attractive. However, the mother tongue of local guests is not English. Furthermore, most local guests are salesmen and local travellers. Thus, the advertiser uses English code mixing in the advertisement texts without knowing the background of the guests. By this condition, this study is conducted to investigate this phenomenon intensely.

1.2 Research Topic

The topic of this study is the phenomenon of English code mixing which occurs in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. The code mixing phenomenon is under sociolinguistic study.

1.3 Research Problem

Hotel 99 Jember is a newly built hotel in Jember which is located at Jl. Darmawangsa 99 Jubung Sukorambi Jember. This hotel is classified as Melati class. The facilities are Air Conditioning, internet Hi-Speed Wifi, 55 rooms, praying room and resto cafe. The guests of Hotel 99 Jember are generally the local people who work as salesmen, travellers, businessmen and government official.

Because the hotel is still new, the promotion is highly spread through Traveloka, Pegipegi and official Instagram. The advertisement texts in Instagram are interesting because some English words are found there. Seeing that most guests are local people, the occurrence of English in the advertisement texts becomes the interesting phenomenon.

Additionally, the mother tongue of local guests is not English. Therefore, it is interesting to see why the advertiser still uses some English words in the advertisement texts, to know whether the occurrence of English words in the advertisement texts affect the guests' attention or not and to find out the reasons for using English code mixing in the advertisement texts.

1.4 Research Questions

Based on the problem of this research above, these following questions are needed to be answered:

- 1) What types of code mixing are used on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember?
- 2) How does English code mixing in the advertisement texts affect the guests' attentions?
- 3) What are the reasons influencing the advertiser to use English code mixing?

1.5 Research Purposes

Based on the research questions above, this study will be conducted to reach some purposes as follows:

- 1) To find out the types of code mixing used on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember.
- 2) To know whether English code mixing in the advertisement texts affects the guests' attentions or not.
- 3) To find out the reasons influencing the advertiser to use English code mixing.

1.6 Research Organization

This study consists of five chapters. Chapter one is introduction. It presents the background of study, research topic, research problem, research questions, research purposes and research organization. Then, the second chapter is literature review. It presents previous studies and theoretical reviews to support this study. After that, the third chapter is research methods. It presents type of research, research strategy, data collection, data processing and data analysis. Next, the fourth chapter is result and discussion. It discusses the analysis data of this study and the results. The last chapter is conclusion. It draws the conclusion of the analysis in this thesis.

CHAPTER 2. LITERATURE REVIEW

To reach the goals of this study, this study presents previous studies and theoretical framework in this chapter. The previous studies are used to support and to develop the researcher's idea. Meanwhile, theoretical frameworks such as code mixing and the factors influencing the use of English code mixing in the advertisement texts are established to support the analysis of this research.

2.1 Previous Studies

The first previous study used as the guidance for this research is an article written by Mujiono, Wilujeng, and Suhartono (2017). They analysed the types of code mixing (CM) performed by Outbound Call (OBC) Center Agents and the reasons influencing OBC Center Agents implementing CM in their call center activities. They collected data by using conversation, observation, and interview to the OBC Center Agents. Then, this study used an approach based on the process of insertion into a matrix or base language, alternation between languages and congruent lexicalization.

The findings of the study revealed that reasons of Outbound Call (OBC) Center Agents used CM were participant roles and relationship, situational factors, message-intrinsic factors, language attitudes, dominance and security. Then, the research also found that English codes occurred in different situations in order to appreciate customer, to persuade customer, to avoid the weakness of products, to follow-up new customer, to build the customers' beliefs and to attract the customers. The contribution of the first previous study is the method used to collect data. It is an interview method. The purpose is to know the reasons for using code mixing.

The second previous research is a study conducted by Jayanti (2017). She analysed code mixing used by online shopping beauty sellers on the promotion texts. She uses qualitative method to analyse data and she distributes questionnaires to collect data. The data were taken from Instagram of four online shopping beauty sellers in Jember. Then, the data are analysed by using Muysken theory of code mixing and Weinreich theory of the factors that influence the sellers to use code mixing. As the results, she found three types of code mixing process used in the promotion texts. Those are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization. In this study, insertion is dominantly used by the sellers rather than other processes.

Furthermore, there are some factors that influence the sellers to use code mixing. They are social value, low frequency of word and introduction or development of new culture. This second previous study gives some contributions to this study. First, this second previous study develops the writer's idea to analyze code mixing phenomenon but the writer focuses on the analysis of English code mixing in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. The next contribution is the use of questionnaire method to collect data. Then, the third contribution is the theory used from Muysken (2000) to analyze the type of code mixing.

The third previous study is an article written by Zohreh and Monireh (2013). They investigated the role and impact of English in printed magazine advertisements by examining the quantitative result. They analysed 261 advertisements. The result shows that English has always used in Persian magazine advertisements to representing attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology. However, using English in Persian magazine advertisements is culturally and linguistically forced. Culturally, the English used in Persian magazine advertisement is only to introduce the name and e-mail address. Linguistically, the English used in Persian magazine advertisement mostly consists of easy vocabulary to understand.

The contribution of the third previous study to this study is the theory used to identify the reasons influencing the use English code mixing in the advertisement texts. They are attracting attention theory from Piller (2000) and Gerristen (2007), persuasion theory from Gerristen (2007), prestige theory from Martin (2002) and Gomez (2010) and technology theory from Kelly and Holmes (2005).

2.2 Theoretical Reviews

2.2.1 Code Mixing

As it has been mentioned in the background of study above, code mixing is a phenomenon which commonly appears in the multilingual country such as Indonesia. It occurs when the speaker mixes lexical and grammatical structures from two languages in one sentence. Mc Kay and Homberger's (1997: 59) mention that "code mixing is quite common in multilingual societies around the world when the speaker uses two languages being mixed." For example, Indonesian people as multilingual societies mix two languages such as Indonesian as their official language with Javanese language as their local language in their utterances in daily conversation.

Besides, the phenomenon of code mixing occurs both in written and spoken texts as communicative strategy in multilingual societies. It is in line with Hoffman (1991: 106) who mentions "code mixing is a strategy of communication used by speakers of a language who transfer element or rule from other language to their own language." He proposes that code mixing is used as communicative strategy in particular purposes such as the use of English words which are inserted into Indonesian utterances by the speaker to attract the listener. For instance, a salesman uses English and Indonesian language as strategy to offer their product to the customers.

In specific definition, Muysken (2000: 1) defines that "code mixing as all cases where lexical items and grammatical features from two languages appear in one sentence without changing the topic of conversation." From this definition, he intends that code mixing is the use of lexical and grammatical features from more than one language within a sentence or a clause. This definition is completely supported by Bathia and Ritchie (2004: 337) who mention that code mixing refers to mixing of various linguistic units (morphemes, words, modifiers, phrases, clauses and sentences) mostly from two participating grammatical systems within a sentence.

2.2.2 The Type of Code Mixing

According to Muysken (2000: 3) “code mixing is divided into three types, they are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization.” The explanation is described as follow.

1. Insertion

The first type of code mixing is insertion. This type deals with the process of insertion of lexical items from one language into a sentence in another language. Muysken (2000:3) states that “insertion is process of material (lexical items or entire constituents) from one language into a structure from the other language.” The insertion type can be divided to several forms as follows.

a. Insertion of word

Insertion of word occurs when words from another language are inserted in the one utterance. The words are noun, verb, adjective, conjunction or others. For example:

Sudah ada rencana liburan akhir tahun? Jangan lupa booking kamarmu jauh-jauh hari ya, pasti kita masih ada promo akhir tahun

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. Meanwhile, the insertion of word is English word with bold text (booking). The English word booking is inserted into Indonesian utterances. Thus, it is called as insertion of word.

b. Insertion of phrase

Insertion of phrase occurs when a phrase form (noun phrase, verb phrase, adjective phrase, adverb phrases and prepositional phrase) from another language is inserted into one utterance of base language. For example:

Selamat berakhir pekan, jangan lupa mampir ya untuk kalian yang lagi berlibur di kota Jember book now (0331) 5103 xxx.

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. Meanwhile, the insertion of phrase is English phrase with bold text (book now). It is inserted into Indonesian utterances. Thus, it is named as insertion of phrase.

c. Insertion of hybrid

Hybrid is a combination of word pieces. Insertion of hybrid occurs when the speaker inserts a piece of word from the two different languages into one utterance. For example:

Nikmati weekend-mu dengan berlibur ke kota Jember dan menginap di @hotel.99.jember

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. Meanwhile, the insertion of hybrid is English words with bold text (weekend-mu). The word of weekend-mu is classified as hybrid because the writer inserts a piece of word weekend from English and -mu from Indonesian. It is inserted into Indonesian utterances. Thus, it is classified as insertion of hybrid.

d. Insertion of word reduplication

Word reduplication is a morphemic process where the morpheme is repeated either completely or partially. Insertion of word reduplication occurs when there is repetition or double words from another language are inserted in utterance. For example:

Selamat hari senin, apakah kalian fine-fine aja? Jangan lupa mampir di @hotel.99.jember

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. Meanwhile, the word reduplication is English words with bold text (fine-fine). The words are inserted into Indonesian utterances. Hence, it is categorized as insertion of word reduplication.

2. Alternation

The second type of code mixing is alternation. Muysken (2000:5) mentions that “in the case of alternation, there is true switch from one language to the other, involving both grammar and lexicon.” Alternation occurs when structures of two languages are alternated both grammatical items and lexical forms. For example:

We serve you better, selamat datang di Hotel 99 Jember.
Nikmati promosi khusus kami*

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. It gets alternation from English clause with bold texts (we serve you better). This process is called as alternation because the writer alternates English language into Indonesian as base sentence. The clause “we serve you better” is classified as main clause. It is truly switched from Indonesian to English language and it constructs Indonesian grammatical form.

3. Congruent Lexicalization

Congruent lexicalization occurs when the mix elements from two languages appear to share grammatical structure in one utterance. Muysken (2000:6) states that “congruent lexicalization refers to a situation where two languages share grammatical structure which can be filled lexically with element from either language.” This definition means that the grammatical structure is constructed from two languages and the lexical items from two languages appear randomly. For example:

Hello travellers, nikmatilah harga khusus dan promo dari #Hotel99Jember untuk reservasi dan booking hubungi segera: Call us (0331) 5103 xxx. Book now! IG: @hotel.99.jember

From the example above, the base sentence is Indonesian with italic texts. In this utterance, English words hello travellers, booking, call us and book now appear randomly within Indonesian utterance. From this explanation, this type of code mixing is classified as congruent lexicalization. It is because English lexical items from two languages appear randomly in suitable place as a lexical class in English and it does not break the Indonesian grammatical structure.

2.2.3 The Reasons for Using English Code Mixing

According to the study of Zohreh and Monireh (2013: 87) there are some factors influencing the advertiser to use English code mixing in the advertisement texts. They are attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology. The explanation is described as follow:

1. Attracting Attention

The greatest purpose of an advertisement is attracting attention of the readers. One of strategies is using English code mixing. It is because English is an international language that is possible to contact people around the world. It is in line with Piller (2000: 153) who mentions that the primary aim of English use in advertisement is to attract a reader's attention. It can be concluded that the use of English in the advertisement texts will attract the readers' attention easily.

In addition, Gerristen (2007: 219) defines that advertisements are expected to be attention if English occurs in advertisement. Thus, the occurrence of English in the advertisement text has a power to get attention of the readers. It is clearly shown that to get more attention of the readers, the advertiser should insert English language on the advertisement. By this explanation, attracting attention becomes the reason to do English code mixing.

2. Persuasion

The second reason to use English code mixing is persuasive value. The advertiser makes the advertisement absolutely has purpose to convince the readers. It means the kind of language used in the advertisement should be considered by the advertiser. For example is inserting some English words in the advertisement texts. The purpose is to persuade the readers towards the product or services which are promoted. It is in accordance with Gerristen (2007: 315) who mentions that inserting English words in the advertisement would have an additional persuasive effect.

By this reason, inserting English words in the advertisement texts exactly increases the persuasive value toward product or service which is being promoted. Therefore, using English code mixing becomes the appropriate reason for persuasive purpose.

3. Prestige

The occurrence of English words in the advertisement can be included as the exclusive register of "prestige" in the advertising world. Martin (2002:375) states that "English serves as a sign of modernity, technological superiority and prestige.” The occurrence of English is functioned to add an extra value of the advertisement. This extra value is called as prestige.

Additionally, Gomez (2010: 52) clarifies that when the advertisers use English words in the advertisement, they reach two final goals. The first is to increase the value of prestige to the product or the brand name advertised. The second is to enhance the advertisement’s ability to draw attention. A simple example is the naming of “coffee milk” has an extra value rather than “kopi susu”. By these explanations, to reach goals of the advertisement the advertiser should show up the prestige value through using English words. Thus, the product has high position to the market and to the customers’ attention.

4. Technology

Technology is very dominant context in the advertising world. Modernity and globalization have brought technology into everyday life. Technology is a domain in advertising where English words are used frequently. Nowadays, technology is used as tools to promote advertisement through internet and social media such as Instagram, Twitter, Facebook, WhatsApp etc. The occurrence of internet and social media can be accessed by people around the world. By this condition, the advertiser should use English to contact lots of people.

Kelly and Holmes (2005: 125) state that “the domains where English words appear most frequently in the advertisement texts which caused by international market, fashion and advanced technology.” It means that along with the development of technology, English is most frequently used in the advertisement texts. It cannot be inevitable because the advertisement is presented to the reader with different societies. Thus, English as an international language is possible to contact all societies.

CHAPTER 3. RESEARCH METHOD

To answer the research questions, this study provides research method in this chapter. The research method covers type of research, research strategy, data collection, data processing and data analysis.

4.1 Type of Research

The type of this study is qualitative research. This study analyses code mixing phenomenon which occurs on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. The data are texts of advertisement which are promoted through official Instagram @hotel.99.jember. By this explanation, this study is categorized as qualitative research. It is in accordance with Denscombe (2007: 248) who defines “qualitative research relies on transforming information from observations, reports and recording into data in form the written word, not number.”

This definition is appropriate to the type of this study because this study analyses text information or written word. The text is non-numeric data. It is advertisement texts which are indicated using English code mixing. By analysing text, this study explores the occurrence of code mixing into each type. Then, this study finds out the reasons of the use of English code mixing and the effect of English code mixing to the attentions of guests. All data are not related to numeric data.

3.2 Research Strategy

The research strategy used in this research is a case study. This study takes one case. Then, it is investigated intensely. The case of this research is the phenomenon of code mixing which occurs in the advertisement texts of Hotel 99

Jember. This study only takes one place as an object study because this study wants to focus to the object. Therefore, this research strategy is defined as a case study.

This is supported by Denscombe (2007: 36) who argues that “case studies focus on one (or just a few) instances of a particular phenomenon with a view to providing an in-depth account of events, relationships, experiences or processes occurring in that particular instance.” The use of case studies has become extremely widespread in social research, particularly with small scale research. Thus, the case study is an appropriate strategy to this study because this study belongs to small scale research.

3.3 Data Collection

In this study, the methods used to collect data are documents, questionnaires and interview. Denscombe (2007: 230) mentions that “documents can be obtained via internet such as web pages, email, or home pages and they can be treated like online documents.” Along with this definition, this study collects the data through printing out 20 advertisements from <https://www.instagram.com/hotel.99.jember/> which are indicated using English code mixing.

Next, this study collects data by distributing questionnaires to the guests of Hotel 99 Jember. Denscombe (2007: 175) mentions that “questionnaire is designed to collect the information which can be used subsequently as data analysis.” The purpose is to know whether the occurrence of English code mixing in the advertisement texts which posted in Instagram affects the guests’ attentions or not. The questionnaires are distributed to 30 guests of Hotel 99 Jember during 30 days. The questionnaires are put in the front office of Hotel 99 Jember. Then, the front office staff asks the guests to fill the questionnaires when the guests are check in or check out.

Afterwards, this study collects data through interview to the manager, advertiser and front office staff of Hotel 99 Jember. This kind of interview is semi-structured interview. It is supported by Denscombe (2007: 176) who defines “semi-structured interview is prepared to be flexible in terms of the topics are considered and perhaps more significantly, to let the interviewer develop ideas and speak more widely.” This kind of interview is purposed to know the reasons why they use English code mixing on the advertisement texts. In this interview, the clear questions are arranged to be answered.

3.4 Data Processing

After collecting the data, the data will be processed with these following steps. The first is classifying code mixing into each type. In this process, it uses Muysken’s theory (2000: 3) as written in the theoretical framework. He divides the types of code mixing into three types. They are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization. The classified data are tabulated.

Afterwards, the process is verifying the results of questionnaires. Then, it is following by describing each question of the questionnaire and its purpose. Then, the last process is classifying the guests’ answers to know how English code mixing affects the guest’s attention. The results are tabulated.

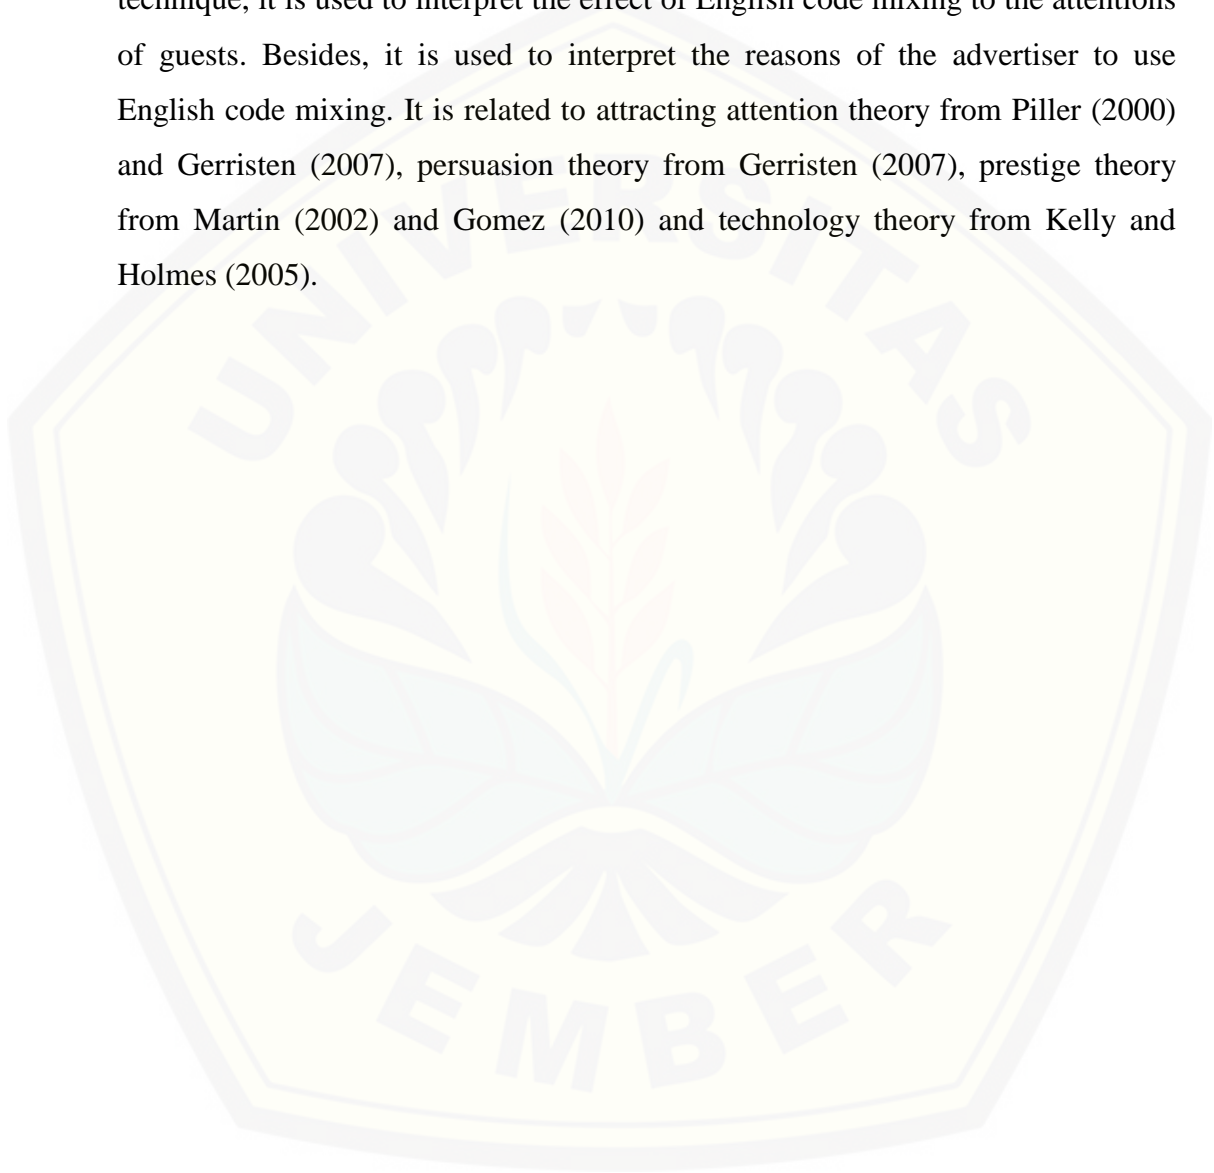

Then, after conducting the interview, the next section is transcribing the results of interview. Then, the next is identifying the reasons of using English code mixing. It is related to the finding of Zohreh and Monireh (2013: 87) who state the reasons are attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology as written in the theoretical framework.

3.5 Data Analysis

After the data are completely processed, the data will be analyzed. This study uses two techniques in analyzing data. They are descriptive and interpretative techniques. The descriptive technique is used to analyze and describe the types of code mixing. They are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization types. It is based on theory from Muysken (2000).

Then, the interpretative technique is used to analyze the results of questionnaires and the results of interview that has been transcribed. By this technique, it is used to interpret the effect of English code mixing to the attentions of guests. Besides, it is used to interpret the reasons of the advertiser to use English code mixing. It is related to attracting attention theory from Piller (2000) and Gerristen (2007), persuasion theory from Gerristen (2007), prestige theory from Martin (2002) and Gomez (2010) and technology theory from Kelly and Holmes (2005).

CHAPTER 5. CONCLUSION

This thesis discusses about the phenomenon of English code mixing that occurs on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. Theory of code mixing from Muysken (2000) and theory of the reasons for using English code mixing from Zohreh and Monireh (2013) are applied in this study.

Based on the data analysis, the results show that there are three types of code mixing used on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. They are insertion, alternation and congruent lexicalization types. Those types are found in twenty advertisement texts which are analyzed. It means the theory from Muysken (2000) works on this study. The number of insertion type used is eighteen. In this type, the English words used are dominantly a command word namely booking.

Then, the number of alternation type is twenty three. This type becomes the dominant type which appears from the twenty advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. In some advertisement texts, the process of alternation appears twice or more. The persuasive words namely book now and booking now mostly used in this type. In the last type, congruent lexicalization occurs six times in six advertisement texts. It is the smallest number compared the other types. The kind of English words used in this type is some greeting clauses such as hello travellers and happy weekend guys.

Furthermore, the data from the questionnaire show that there are five out of thirty guests who are aware of the English code mixing used in the advertisement texts. Moreover, there are two guests who are interested in staying in the Hotel 99 Jember because of the English code mixing used in the advertisement texts. It means that the English code mixing used in the advertisement texts does not give significant effect to the attention of the guests in choosing Hotel 99 Jember to stay. It is proven by the total guests who are interested in staying in the Hotel 99 Jember is smallest.

From the further analysis, the results of interview show that the proposition of Zohreh and Monireh (2013:87) who mention the reasons for using English code mixing in the advertisement texts are attracting attention, persuasion, prestige and technology works on this study. However, the other results of interview show that the other reasons exist as the reasons of using English code mixing. They are efficient words, going public, showing identity, marketing strategy and long term investment. These are stated by the interviewees.

As the conclusion, there are various reasons for using English code mixing on the advertisement texts of Hotel 99 Jember. Additionally, the manager, the advertiser and the front office staff stated that English code mixing is used in order to make the hotel into well-known even though it has been existing less than a year. They also stated that this English code mixing used becomes a pride when this hotel develops into Star class hotel in the future.

Finally, after doing research and analysis of English code mixing phenomenon, this study creates a new hope. It is expected to give contribution to the readers a better understanding of code mixing phenomenon by the application of code mixing theory in this study. Moreover, it can be an additional reference for those who are interested in code mixing topic.

APPENDIX 6. The Quotations of InterviewQuotation 1

The researcher: “Menurut pendapat Anda, apakah alasan menggunakan bahasa Inggris di teks iklan untuk menarik perhatian tamu?”

(“In your opinion, is the reason to use English code in the advertisement text to attract attention?”)

The manager: ”Iya, betul. Alasan penggunaan bahasa Inggris di teks iklan memang bertujuan untuk menarik perhatian tamu. Karena tamu yang menginap tidak hanya dari Jawa Timur. Ada yang dari Bali, Jogja bahkan pernah dua kali dari luar negeri. Oleh karena itu bahasa Inggris sangat dibutuhkan untuk membantu pemahaman mereka terhadap Hotel 99 Jember. Selain itu, tamu yang menginap disini tidak semua selalu dari kalangan menengah ke bawah, ada juga dari pengusaha dan pegawai pemerintahan. Beberapa dari mereka ada yang long stay disini selama 2 minggu bahkan kemaren pengusaha dari Jogja yang dinas di Puger long stay disini selama satu bulan. Jadi, penggunaan bahasa Inggris ini sangat membantu untuk menarik perhatian mereka untuk menginap disini.”

(“Yes it is right. The reason to use English in the advertisement text is to attract guests’ attentions. It is because the guests who stay here do not only come from East Java. They come from Bali, Jogja and ever there were guests coming from other countries who stayed here twice.

Therefore, English is very needed to help them understand towards Hotel 99 Jember.”) Besides, the background of the guests who stay here are not only from lower class, but also there are from businessman and government official. Some of them stayed long for 2 weeks. Moreover, there were businessmen who came from Jogja and had a duty in Puger stayed here for one month. Thus, this English use is very helpful to attract their attention to stay here.”)

Then, it is followed with interview to the advertiser of Hotel 99 Jember.

The researcher: “Apakah alasan Anda menggunakan bahasa Inggris di teks iklan untuk menarik perhatian tamu?”

(“Is your reason for using English code in the advertisement texts to attract the guests’ attention?”)

The advertiser: “Iya benar. Beberapa perusahaan yang aku pegang semua iklannya aku selipkan bahasa Inggris. Karena jika kita punya sebuah usaha apa saja target pasarnya adalah universal. Apa lagi ini yang di jual adalah hotel dan alat promosinya adalah Instagram disana semua orang bisa melihatnya dengan sangat mudah. Jadi, bahasa Inggris sangat membantu untuk menarik perhatian tamu tidak hanya dari tamu lokal tapi ada juga dari Istanbul dan Kuala Lumpur kemaren yang memberikan respon iklan di Instagram kemaren. Jadi saya memang sengaja menyelipkan bahasa Inggris pada teks iklan, ya untuk mengikuti jaman juga sih. Kalau anak muda bilang sih biar hits. Jadi mereka akan tertarik untuk menginap di Hotel 99 Jember khususnya para backpackers.”

(“Yes, it is right. I am handling some companies and I intentionally insert English words in all the advertisements because whatever the businesses are we should set them universally targeted. Moreover, this advertisement sells hotel’s services and the tool to promote is Instagram. All people can access it very easily. Therefore, the English use is very helpful to attract the attention of the guests who are not only from local area but also overseas. Yesterday, 2 overseas people from Istanbul and Kuala Lumpur response on our Instagram. Dulu 2013 kopi hitam dibandrol dengan harga dua ribu rupiah sekarang ganti nama menjadi “black coffee” harganya menjadi IDR 5k kemudian “koptail” dibandrol harga IDR 10k. Terus menjadi keren juga ketika kita ngopi di brothers café padahal semua sama seperti warung kopi lainnya. Nah ini menjadi sebuah fenomena yang menarik kan? Semakin berkembangnya jaman industri kreatif menggunakan bahasa Inggris untuk meningkatkan prestige tadi. Nah apa lagi ini sekelas hotel. Penggunaan bahasa Inggris sangat membantu untuk menambah nilai Hotel 99 Jember meskipun masih baru dan belum satu tahun berdiri.”*

Then, koptail is branded with price 10k. Besides, it seems great when we are hanging out in the brother’s cafe although the taste of coffee is actually same with the other coffee shops. So, it becomes the interesting phenomenon, isn’t it? Moreover, this is used to promote hotel. Jadi meskipun hotel ini masih kelas Melati, tapi penggunaan bahasa Inggris sangat menambah nilai jual dari Hotel 99 Jember.”*

(“Yes, it is exactly correct. The English use totally adds value or prestige of Hotel 99 Jember because not all Jember people know Hotel 99. Jika teks iklan tidak menggunakan bahasa Inggris, maka di Instagram ada keterangan ”see the translation”. Jadi untuk memudahkan pemahaman seluruh orang di dunia lebih baik menggunakan bahasa Inggris. Ini adalah efek dari perkembangan teknologi.*

(“Yes, it is right. In my opinion, the reason for using English in the advertisement texts is because of the development of technology. It is because this hotel uses Instagram as a tool to promote. Instagram is a media that can be accessed by all people in the world. Thus, English is very needed because English in an international language. Jadi nanti akan menjadi kebanggan, karena sejak awal berdiri hotel ini sudah menggunakan bahasa Inggris untuk promosi.”*
